Israeli hoopsters score another win in Moscow

84-77 victory over Puerto Rico

MOSCOW (Reuter). — Israel scored their second victory over Puerto Rico in the world student games men's basketball tournament here yesterday to earn a clash against Japan in their last match today. (See picture, page 4).

The Israelis, who followed up their earlier 77-61 victory with an 84-77 triumph yesterday, played at the Moscow University sports hall where they were left free of the taunts and insults which marred some of their earlier games at the Moscow central army sports club.

Israel now plays Japan in the match for ninth and 10th places today, though team coach Yehoshua Rosin said they faced a tough struggle as many of their key players were extremely tired after a long and difficult tournament.

"We had to use practically the same five players all the time today because the substitutes were so tired," Mr. Rosin said.

Star of the team yesterday was leading scorer Itamar Marzel whose spectacular ball control made up for his lack of height under the basket.

HARD FIGHT

The Israelis led 44-38 at halftime though they were made to fight hard for every point by the speedy Puerto Ricans who seldom trailed by more than six points.

On the volleyball courts, Israel beat Venezuela 3-0.

Meanwhile, the Cuban men's basketball team have been warned they will be disqualified from the games if there is any repetition of their brawl with the United States on Wednesday, Games officials said yesterday (see picture, page 7).

American team officials, who discussed the matter at a meeting of the technical committee and the Cuban team officials, made no formal protest.

Peace reigned throughout yesterday's match in which Cuba beat Czechoslovakia 64-58 to earn a clash against Bulgaria in their last match today.

'Pravda' says press reports are nonsense: protests mount

MOSCOW. — In a reaction to protests against anti-Semitic attacks on Israeli athletes and Soviet Jews here, the newspaper "Komsomolskaya Pravda" yesterday branded as "nonsense" reports that Soviet Jews were prevented from attending an Israel-Cuba basketball game at the World University Games last week.

The newspaper singled out a report by James C. Coote published in the London "Sunday Telegraph." Similar reports of police barring Jews who held admission tickets to the game were carried by other news media.

"Mr. Coote came to the match only to make capital on the tired theme of imaginary persecution of Jews in the Soviet Union," the newspaper said.

"It is only an ill-wisher who could write such absurd things. Was it worthwhile for Mr. Coote to come to Moscow and get accredited at the Universiad press centre in order to invent such nonsense?"

In New York yesterday, school children in gym clothes and American sports figures demonstrated in front of the Soviet U.N. mission to protest the incidents in Moscow. The demonstration was sponsored by the B'nai B'rith and the Greater New York Conference on Soviet Jewry.

Seymour Graubard, national chairman of the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League, in a letter to Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, demanded that the U.S.S.R. be denied the opportunity to host the 1980 Olympics.

In Amsterdam, two Dutch newspapers, the conservative "De Telegraaf" and the progressive "De Volksrant," yesterday urged the Olympic Committee to "reconsider" the U.S.S.R.'s candidacy for the 1980 Olympics. (UPI, INA)

Jewish crewman Israel-bound after jumping Soviet ship

TOKYO (AP). — A 27-year-old Soviet crewman, picked up by a Japanese fishing boat off northern Japan after jumping into the sea from his fishing vessel, left Tokyo yesterday by air for Israel, where he will seek refuge, Japan's Kyodo News Service reported.

Japanese officias, however, refused to comment on the report, probably because of security reasons.

Kyodo said the Soviet crewman, identified as Goldgor Leonid Fridmanovich, who is of Jewish descent, was allowed to leave for Israel. The Soviet Embassy here confirmed that he wanted to seek refuge in Israel, and the Israeli Embassy said he would be accepted in the country.

Fridmanovich, a compressor engineer on a 60-ton Soviet refrigeration ship, jumped off his ship as it passed through the Tsugaru Strait on Sunday. He was rescued by Japanese fishermen on Monday.

Officials earlier said Fridmanovich told Japanese investigators that he wanted to defect to the U.S. or Israel because his mother is Jewish.

Don't repeat Jarring's error, Galili advises U.N., statesmen

HERZLIYA. — The U.N. Secretary-General and American statesmen who visit the Middle East would do well not to repeat the mistake of U.N. envoy Gunnar Jarring in insisting that Israel agree in advance to a general withdrawal from the present borders, Minister-without-Portfolio Yisrael Galili said here yesterday.

Addressing a Labour Alignment rally, Mr. Galili said Dr. Jarring's proposal set back the cause of Middle East peace: this could be achieved only through unconditional negotiations and not by solutions imposed from outside.

He said any initiative from the U.S. would be considered in the light of Israel's security needs and its contribution to advancing peace.

Referring to outgoing U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers, Mr. Galili said there were at least two occasions when Mr. Rogers was prominently involved with the Middle East. The first was the "Rogers Plan," calling for an Israeli commitment to full-scale withdrawal — "which we rejected because it ignored our vital defence interests." The second was Mr. Rogers' welcome initiative which led to the Suez Canal cease-fire in 1970.

Large-scale oil exploration said 'vital' for Israel

By ZEEV SCHUL
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Seven top Israeli geologists believe the Government should embark on intensive and long-term oil exploration in Sinai, the West Bank, and other parts of the country.

The seven-member panel, headed by Professor A. Ginsburg of the Israel Petroleum Institute, is expected to submit its findings to the Government within a fortnight, The Post learns. They believe the Rafah approach area is a particularly promising one.

Oil exploration in Israel has been virtually halted: The panel believes its resumption is a matter of vital concern to the State.

Mr. Mordechai Hen, managing director of Lapidot, Government oil company, told The Post yesterday that nuclear or thermal power sources will not be developed in time to meet the looming world energy crisis.

An intensive oil exploration programme could establish whether Israel will be able to provide for its own fuel requirements in the near future.

The geologists believe oil will be found in substantial quantities. The Pithat Rafiah area is singled out as a particularly good prospect. Additional quantities could also be derived from off-shore fields adjoining producing areas on the Red Sea coast. Extensive additional exploration and drillings in the area would be subject to top level Government decisions.

According to former Netivei Neft director Mottie Friedman, the so-called Morgan Sector of the Red Sea, including the Egyptian and Israel side of the Gulf, could become a major oil yielding area even by Middle Eastern standards.

Swedish ministers meet as gunman demands plane

STOCKHOLM. — Swedish Prime Minister Olaf Palme met with top ministers here late last night to decide whether a gunman, holding six hostages in a bank here, should be allowed to fly out of Sweden.

The young bank robber, earlier received the 3m. kroner (about 3m.) he demanded and the release from prison of another bank robber, then demanded a get-away plane.

Libyan 'people' take over Benghazi

TRIPOLI (UPI). — Libyan citizens have dismissed the Benghazi governor and taken over the running of the city themselves, the Libyan radio said yesterday.

The citizens formed a people's committee to run the city as part of Libya's cultural revolution, the radio said. The committee's first decision was to dismiss the governor from his two posts of governor and local secretary of the Arab Socialist Union, Libya's only political party.

The decision has been approved by the ruling Revolution Council, which is led by Col. Muammar Gaddafi.

Bomb to 10 Downing

LONDON (AP). — A lethal letter bomb was delivered to Prime Minister Edward Heath's official residence at No. 10 Downing Street yesterday amid a wave of bomb scares throughout London. Police said there was little doubt that the Irish Republican Army was responsible. (Earlier story, p. 5)

An explosion around midnight last night rocked a flat in Rehov Hadassah in Jerusalem's Beit Hakerem district. Damage was caused and the police were investigating at press time.

Foreign policy will be more open—Kissinger

'Jewish heritage no bar'

SAN CLEMENTE, California. — Secretary of State-designate Henry Kissinger said yesterday President Nixon intends to establish "a new and full partnership with Congress" in developing foreign policy in the national interest.

Standing on the lawn in front of the Western White House, Dr. Kissinger told a news conference: "We will do our best to conduct foreign policy in as open a manner as possible . . . to bring about lasting peace."

He said foreign policy under his leadership, if he is confirmed by the Senate, will become more "institutionalized" and diplomacy will be conducted on a more open basis than the secrecy that has marked the Nixon Administration in the past four years. "Any administration wants to leave the world better than it found it," he said. "The most important challenge is to bring about a stable peace."

Citing the aim of bringing "a stable peace" to the world as the goal of the Nixon Administration, Dr. Kissinger said that now that the Vietnam war is over it will be possible to operate with less secrecy in international negotiations.

Dr. Kissinger said that President Nixon, in the remainder of his presidency, would place more emphasis on relations with Europe and Japan and seek to conclude a structure of peace that would make the world a safer place.

Asked about the expressed fears of some Arabs that his Jewish family heritage might influence his conduct in Middle East affairs, Dr. Kissinger said: "I am asked to conduct the foreign policy of the United States. I will conduct it regardless of religious or national heritage."

He added that in no other country of the world could a man of his background ever be considered for the high post for which President Nixon nominated him on Wednesday. "It poses a very great responsibility that I will pursue in the national interest," he said.

Dr. Kissinger said he will make a trip to Peking, but that it will have to be put off until he receives Senate confirmation in his new dual job as Mr. Nixon's Secretary of State and presidential assistant.

He said President Nixon has postponed plans to visit Latin America this year because of domestic problems. But he said the President still intends to make a "grand tour" of Western Europe, tentatively scheduled for late October or early November. The timing of that trip will be decided after a September 10 meeting of European Foreign Ministers in Copenhagen.

SIGNIFICANT TRIP

Dr. Kissinger said Mr. Nixon's trip to Europe will be "significant and substantive" rather than a superficial swing through various capitals.

The Latin American visit had never been formally announced, but it was known the President planned to travel there late this year and Dr. Kissinger's remark was the first confirmation that the trip had been in the works.

Dr. Kissinger said he thought "the effects of Watergate can be minimized," and he promised to create a "new consensus" behind American foreign policy. All foreign countries must assess the degree of authority held by leaders of other nations they deal with, Dr. Kissinger said, and "to the extent that this is affected, there is a long-range effect on foreign policy" stemming from Watergate.

On another matter, Dr. Kissinger contradicted exiled Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk's contention he had protested U.S. bombing of North Vietnamese sanctuaries within his country in 1968-70. Mr. Nixon said last Monday that Sihanouk secretly agreed to the air raids. "Prince Sihanouk always took the view he would protest any air operations involving Cambodia," Dr. Kissinger said. "He also took the position that in bombing of areas where there were no Cambodians, he would not protest." (UPI, AP)

Will Vietnam be precedent for Mid-East?

Eban meets Kissinger in October

By ASHER WALLFISH
Jerusalem Post Diplomatic Reporter

Foreign Minister Abba Eban will meet the new U.S. Secretary of State, Prof. Henry Kissinger, in October in Washington, when he visits the U.S. for the autumn session of the U.N. General Assembly.

The meeting will give the two men an opportunity for the type of wide-ranging review of the Middle East situation which the Israeli Foreign Minister has traditionally held with his American counterpart on the occasion of the Assembly session.

They are likely to discuss what U.S. Ambassador John Scali defined on Tuesday night in a television interview as the determining factor of his country's Middle East policy — "the U.S. effort to encourage the Arabs and Israel to take a meaningful first step."

This first step, an interim arrangement to reopen the Suez Canal, would be the "starting point for even more far-reaching discussions," John Scali said over NBC television (see "Scali hints," page 5).

KEPT IN BACKGROUND

The fact that Prof. Kissinger accepted the post of Secretary of State means that he accepted responsibility for the Middle East file in his country's foreign policy publicly for the first time. Although U.S. Middle East policy has been under close control of the White House for over three years, and Prof. Kissinger was involved in it, he always kept well in the background.

Now, emerging into the foreground, Prof. Kissinger has accepted the challenge of coming up with a new and perhaps more flexible policy, which would encourage the parties to the Middle East dispute to make some movement. The Americans believe the Israeli leadership would prefer immobility in the Middle East situation if an interim arrangement to reopen the Suez Canal is not feasible.

Prof. Kissinger's Jewish origins are not considered by his acquaintances here to be part of his personal or political psychology. He is known as a man of great sophistication as well as great integrity. His objective sympathy for the principle of Jewish statehood is not likely to impel him to partiality. Conversely, he is not the type who would bend over backwards to emphasize his impartiality.

In an off-the-record briefing at the California White House last winter, Prof. Kissinger said one of the purposes of U.S. policy was to ensure the security of Israel and not to guarantee its conquests.

DETERRENT STRENGTH

Prof. Kissinger is known to believe that Israel's deterrent posture should be maintained. After the Soviets and Egyptians violated the 1970 cease-fire by moving their missiles forward, he persuaded Premier Golda Meir that the proper response — for regional and global reasons alike — should be "rectification" and not "restoration of the status quo ante." As a result, Egypt lost far more than it gained from advancing the missiles, while Israel continues to gain this very day as far as advanced armament development is concerned.

Prof. Kissinger saw Israeli superiority emerging clearly in the Middle East in 1970, a superiority which would make Israel less anxious about its security, and eventually enable it to negotiate from a position of strength.

Like other U.S. figures, Prof. Kissinger has gone on record as shunning an imposed solution in the Middle East crisis.

However, if the Vietnam arrangement is to be a precedent (and it may not be) Prof. Kissinger's understanding of U.S. disengagement from regional disputes, undeniably contains a trace of "enforcement." To judge by Vietnam, balance on the regional level can be a by-product of detente between the superpowers, but the superpowers may also suggest specific terms of reference to the regional powers.

Accordingly, if the new Secretary of State's Middle East policy is consistent with his past theory and action, he may well conceive, eventually, of the U.S. and U.S.S.R. drafting the outline of what they agree would be a fair and reasonable deal for the Middle East, then making this outline unmistakeably clear to Israel and its Arab neighbours.

This would probably be a faithful reflection of Prof. Kissinger's philosophy of the two-tier world, with superpowers on the top tier, and small states separately on the bottom tier, yet interrelated. In his philosophy, the superpowers have responsibilities which necessitate their involvement as well as their detente.

AMBASSADOR RABIN

Prof. Kissinger's handling of the Middle East hitherto was always discreet, even at times of major crisis like the Syrian armoured invasion of Jordan, when — as U.S. analysts revealed — he virtually established a two-man war room, with then Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin. He also became closely involved during Premier Golda Meir's visits to Washington. His relationship with Rabin was a kind he maintained with only a handful of other foreign envoys. He took pains to let the State Department play its rightful role front stage.

Despite Ambassador Scali's statement two days ago that the Middle East is not on President Richard Nixon's "back burner," Prof. Kissinger cannot conceivably jump the Middle East up from the fourth or fifth to top priority.

Relations with Moscow, the Indo-China complex, European Security, nuclear arms proliferation, and the state of the U.S. economy, must inevitably demand "more attention" from President Nixon (to use Scali's phrase) than the present Middle East situation which has no immediate urgency.

Prof. Kissinger's thinking has helped give the Middle East relative stability.

Hence, if he shapes a different Middle East approach, it will emerge only gradually — after Premier Meir forms her next Cabinet, and it will probably not involve radical changes.

Any new aproach is also likely to ensure that the U.S., growing predominance over the U.S.S.R. in this part of the world will be maintained.

No change: Eban

Foreign Minister Abba Eban told an Alignment meeting in Tel Aviv last night that William Rogers' resignation as U.S. Secretary of State and the appointment of Henry Kissinger in his place gave no cause for fear of a change in the U.S. attitude towards Israel. "Washington is satisfied with its present policy, and there is no sign that it has any intention of diverging from a policy that has proven successful."

Gahal's allies spurn offered places, demand accord on programme

By MARK SEGAL
Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The crisis in negotiations for a centrist bloc deepened yesterday, as the State List rejected Gahal's "final" offer with regard to places on the joint list.

At the same time no meeting was held with the two Free Centre Knesset members, because party leader Shmuel Tamir was not even ready to talk. He considers it an insult that he was offered only eighth place on the joint list. Gahal has 26 M.K.'s in the outgoing Knesset; the State List — three; and the Free Centre — two.

The "final" offer, a proposal by Herut chairman Menahem Begin which was endorsed by the entire Gahal executive, would give the State List three places among the top 32 candidates on the joint list, with the fourth place among the 32nd and 37th names.

Yesterday when the Herut executive opened at 8 a.m. in the conference hall on the 14th floor of Herut headquarters in Beit Jabotinsky, it approved the stand formulated by Begin whereby Gahal would make this additional and final gesture to the State List. On Wednesday, Gahal had offered the State List Nos. 7, 20, 31 and 40 and the Free Centre — Nos. 8, 23, 37 and 41. The State List had countered by demanding Nos. 5, 16, 24 and 32. Mr. Tamir had walked out after turning down the offer.

Mr. Begin, in presenting his proposal for the "final" offer to the Gahal executive, acknowledged internal criticism that they were going too far in offering concessions to the smaller parties. But, he said he felt the final aim of compiling a joint list made this worthwhile. Liberal executive chairman Simha Erlich and other Liberal leaders also reported criticism in their party that the negotiators were going too far in mollifying the smaller parties. Some members pointed out that even under Mr. Begin's proposed list, any increment in votes to the joint list would benefit not Gahal, but only the smaller parties. Herut's Haim Landau complained that the smaller parties were dragging out the talks unnecessarily with elections so near.

Ezer Weizman and Ariel Sharon both found Mr. Begin's offer a reasonable one. Mr. Landau and Mr. Sharon were then commissioned to present the offer to the State List, while Mr. Erlich was asked to speak to Mr. Tamir.

Sharon and Landau met Yigal Hurwitz and Zalman Shoval, two State List leaders who turned down the Begin offer. Both State List M.K.s said that what interested them as much as seats on the list was whether Gahal accepted electoral reform for the Knesset and local government as a platform issue. Mr. Shoval warned Mr. Landau that if the centrist bloc did not come into being then the public would hold Gahal responsible. However, the State List leaders promised to convene their secretariat to discuss the Gahal offer.

Later Mr. Erlich phoned Shmuel Tamir, who talked of first settling the platform, before responding to the Gahal offer of places on the joint list.

Kollek ultimatum on deputy mayor

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek yesterday stated that he would not run for re-election if the Labour Party in the Capital insists on appointing a party functionary as one of his deputies. In a notification to the press, Mr. Kollek said it was the basic right of any mayor to choose the men he feels are best suited to running the town, and that there was no place for political considerations in town management.

The Mayor was referring to a running argument with the Alignment branch in the Capital, which insists on naming branch secretary Zvi Rosen as one of the three deputy mayors. For his part, Mr. Kollek insists on Meron Benvenisti. (Councillor Benvenisti is currently in charge of planning without being a deputy mayor.)

In his announcement, Mr. Kollek said that his differences with the party machine in the town were not personal, but a matter of principle. The party should understand, he said, that the mayor should be able to choose the men he feels are best suited to help him in solving the town's problems, and should not force him into handing out municipal positions as a method of solving party problems. Last week the Labour Party in the city and Mr. Kollek agreed that a four-man committee should discuss the problem and recommend a candidate for the deputy mayor post. The committee is chaired by Mr. Zvi Rosen — the man at the centre of the controversy — and the man whom Mr. Kollek has stated he will not accept as his deputy.

The Committee will hand in its recommendations after the Histadrut elections on September 11. Meanwhile, it was reported yesterday that the Labour Party has been "pushing" the candidacy of Deputy Knesset Speaker Yitzhak Navon and Chairman of the Jewish Agency's Immigration Department, Mr. Uzi Narkis, as possible replacements for Mr. Kollek should he not bow to the Party's will, and accept Rosen as his deputy.

Representatives of 20 neighbourhood committees yesterday called on Mr. Kollek at his office to urge him to run again for mayor. They said that, though they belonged to various political parties, they felt his achievements in furthering the Capital's development earned him the right to continue serving as mayor. It was agreed that the committees would meet with the district Labour Party chairman, Moshe Baram, M.K. and ask him to satisfy Mr. Kollek's conditions for agreeing to run.

13 Histadrut lists now being checked

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Histadrut officials have begun checking the 13 party lists filed on Wednesday for its elections, to be held September 11. Any irregularities must be corrected by midnight next Tuesday for the lists to appear at the polls.

The Alignment and the newly formed Likud — the block comprising Gahal, State List and Free Centre — have supplied a full contingent of 1,501 names each. Their lists' final (honorary) places have been given respectively to ex-President Zalman Shazar (Alignment) and Dr. Elimelech Rimalt (Likud).

Of the 13 applications filed on Wednesday, all but three come from established political parties or their recent derivatives. The three non-political lists are the "Ahva" group, associated with Iraqi immigrants, and two Yemenite lists — one associated with Lydda residents and the other with Tel Avivians.

In marked departure from tradition, most parties have listed their candidates in the order of precedence. The Histadrut constitution allows for the lists to be tabled in alphabetical order, in which case the sponsoring party later selects which representatives will actually take part in the convention.

A check of the lists shows that the Alignment has agreed for a transfer of surplus votes with the Oved Hadati (Religious Workers List). Meir Pa'il precedes the veteran Communist leader Shmuel Mikunis on the Moked list. (Meri, which combines Haolam Hazeh and a Maki splinter group, listed its candidates in alphabetical order.) The Black Panthers' list is headed by Sa'adia Marciano, followed by Shalom Cohen, M.K., of the "Israeli Democrats."

In addition to candidates' lists to the general convention, seven applications were filed on Wednesday to the Women's Council, and seven for the Agricultural Workers Convention. Applications were also received for 56 local labour councils, in which a number of local interests are seeking representation.

SELECTIONS

Histadrut Secretary-General Yitzhak Ben-Aharon, speaking to a regional rally of kibbutz members at Kibbutz Beit Hashitta yesterday, claimed that the Alignment's programme for the next four years holds out the hope of reducing the gap between the earnings on capital and from labour. He also spoke of limiting "the process of the few enriching themselves from the property of the many."

*

Palmah writer and university lecturer Matti Meged is among the top names on the Histadrut candidates' list of Moked — Communist-New Left headed by Meir Pe'il. Mr. Meged, who was formerly active in Mapam, will also head the Moked list to the Haifa Labour Council, while one of the top names on the Jerusalem Labour Council list for Moked is another former Mapam member, Dan Leon, of the World Zionist Organization's information department.

A call to all former Rafi members to mobilize for the Labour Alignment election campaign has been issued by Labour Party Deputy Secretary-General Mordechai Surkiss. He spoke after Defence Minister Moshe Dayan registered his satisfaction at the consensus reached with other Labour Ministers on a working programme in the territories in the next four years, but warned against Mapam pressure for changing the recommendations.

The Meri Histadrut list has complained to Kupat Holim Chairman Asher Yadlin that Kupat Holim money is being used for Alignment propaganda and demanded an immediate session of the Sick Fund's management committee to discuss the matter.

Eliav backers denounce capture of Habash plane

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The Labour Party ideological group "For clarifying social and political problems," has denounced the Defence Forces' seizure a fortnight ago of the Lebanese plane in which terrorist chief George Habash was supposed to be travelling.

The group, which consists of "doves" and is known to enjoy the support of Cabinet aspirant Arye Eliav, said in a statement issued here that the incident was a breach of the freedom of civil aviation and undermined Israel's campaign against air piracy.

Agnew's successor in Baltimore indicted

BALTIMORE, MD. (AP). — The man who succeeded Vice-President Spiro Agnew as chief executive of Baltimore County was indicted yesterday by a Federal Grand Jury investigating political corruption here.

The defendant, Democrat Dale Anderson, was charged with bribery and extortion. Anderson is the acknowledged political strong man in Baltimore County, Maryland's third largest Government unit. He was the only individual named in the massive indictment returned by the special jury after about eight months investigation.

Last pre-Soviet rabbi, Lubanov dies in Leningrad

LONDON (INA). — Jewish sources in the Soviet Union have reported the death in Leningrad of Rabbi Jacob Lubanov, who ministered at the synagogue in Lermontov Street. He was 95.

Rabbi Lubanov was the last of the Rabbis in Soviet Russia not appointed by the Government. In recent years, he publicly declared his love for Israel and dissociated himself from a Government statement criticising the Jewish State.

Rabbi Lubanov is survived by his widow. They had no children.

New tender rule for Gov't office personnel

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The management in Government offices will in the future be permitted to put forward its own candidate for a vacant post, according to a change in "internal tender" procedures announced this week by the Civil Service Commission. The change, made in agreement with the Civil Servants Union, is significant in that it gives management the opportunity to assist the advancement of a good worker.

In another departure from past practice, internal tenders will be open only to workers employed in the same regional unit as the vacancy. Thus, an employee of a Government ministry office in Jerusalem would not be permitted to apply for a vacant post in the same Ministry's office in Tel Aviv.

A joint committee of the commission and the Histadrut union has recommended that the internal tender system be dropped altogether for filling senior positions — those from grades 16 to the top grade of 20 in the civil service. However, this recommendation will not be made a rule for the time being.

Flooded city in Pakistan is evacuated

RAWALPINDI. — The floods devastating Pakistan for two weeks caused more misery and suffering yesterday when Khanpur city was covered with nearly five metres of water. All but 600 of the city's 70,000 population were evacuated.

The authorities had fought for three days to protect the city, 96 kms. north of the Sind province border.

At the U.N., Pakistani Ambassador A.K. Akhund told a news conference yesterday that the floods devastating his country were the "greatest in living memory" with hundreds of lives lost.

He said that the floods had hit 25,000 square miles, destroying more than a million homes and a million tons of food grains. (Reuter, UPI)

Arabs plan Kuwait summit on oil policy

Jerusalem Post Arab Affairs Reporter

Arab oil-producing states were yesterday reported planning to hold a summit conference in Kuwait to outline a joint oil policy as part of their Middle East political strategy. Cairo reports said that the session might be held next week.

The head of the United Arab Emirates, Sheikh Zayed Ben Sultan al Nahian, has indicated that the conference may consider adopting sanctions against the U.S. to protest its Middle East policy. Beirut press reports quoted the Sheikh as warning that his federation would be the first to bar oil to the U.S. should the Arab oil-producing states adopt such a measure.

But there was no word on such threats from Saudi Arabia which is the focus of Arab oil power as far as the U.S. is concerned.

Future developments are difficult to predict although the U.S. Administration is likely to undertake immediate political moves to avoid confrontation with the Arab oil-producing countries.

The latest eruption of Arab oil threats was believed to have been initiated by Egypt which is seeking to exert pressure on the U.S. aimed at forcing it to speed up a Middle East political settlement in favour of the Arabs.

President Anwar Sadat was yesterday reported to have summoned Fatah chief Yasser Arafat to Cairo for what was described as "talks within the framework of total confrontation" with Israel and the U.S.

Ssdat's call to Arafat followed the Egyptian President's recent contacts with Syria, Jordan and Iraq which are being urged to revive the joint eastern military front.

Informed sources in Cairo also said President Sadat is due to hold early talks with King Faisal of Saudi Arabia covering the whole spectrum of the Middle East situation.

In Damascus, a council of an Arab union of workers yesterday called for a pan-Arab boycott of "American interests."

The Arab campaign of pressure on the U.S. contrasted with the mood in Jordan where the press quoted government circles as saying that Washington is intending to open a new Middle East political drive aimed at settling the Israel-Arab conflict.

The Amman press comment was circulated prior to Washington's announcement on the appointment as Secretary of State of Dr. Henry Kissinger. The Arabs have so far maintained silence on the Washington move. Despite their evident distrust of Dr. Kissinger for being Jewish, the Arabs have been expecting him to intervene in Middle East politics ever since he steered the Indochina war towards a settlement.

Skylab space walk due today

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (AP). — Given medical clearance to set a manned space flight endurance record, Skylab 2's astronauts yesterday prepared for a four-hour space walk today.

Skylab Director William Schneider announced on Wednesday that medical specialists analyzed progress of Alan Bean, Dr. Owen Garriott, and Jack Lousma and gave them a go-ahead to remain in space until at least August 31, the 35th day of the planned 59-day mission. That will surpass by a week the space flight record of 28 days logged by the Skylab 1 crew in June.

Schneider said before the flight, that as the 28-day mark approached, doctors would carefully monitor the astronauts' conditions and make a week-by-week determination on whether to continue the journey.

Syrian leaders discuss ties with Beirut, Amman

DAMASCUS (UPI). — The leadership of the National Progressive Front met yesterday under President Hafez Assad to discuss relations with Lebanon and Jordan, Damascus Radio said.

The Front is a coalition of "progressive" political parties, taking part in the government, and is led by the Arab Socialist Ba'ath Party.

The radio said the meeting discussed an agreement reached last weekend with Lebanon, which led to the reopening of the border between the two countries. The border had been closed by Syria on May 8 to protest against the Lebanese Army's attack on ex-Palestinian terrorists.

The leadership also discussed the consultations with Jordan which were aimed at restoring relations between the two countries. Syria broke relations with Jordan in 1971 to protest against King Hussein's drive against the terrorists.

A PASSING-OUT parade of a women officers course was held yesterday at an I.D.F. base somewhere in Israel. Reviewing the graduating girl cadets were Aluf Herzl Shafir, O.C. Manpower Division, and Aluf-Mishne Ruth Muskal, O.C. Women's Corps (Chen).

SOME 800 old folk from towns and settlements in the South, including many recent immigrants, are currently attending a summer camp in the national park in Ashkelon. The camp, the first of its kind in Israel, is being run by the Social Welfare Ministry.

Police can't span divided bridge

Jerusalem Post Reporter

EL AVIV. — If you're going to e mugged late at night — don't t it happen to you on the bridge parating Tel Aviv from Ramat an, if you want speedy police ac-on. This is the lesson which a -year-old student learned earlier s week, according to a story he d the press.

While walking across the Rehov alacha bridge in the Bavli quar-r, he was jumped by three young-ers wearing army uniform. He anaged to shake them off and ran the nearby Ramat Gan police ation. After describing the inci-nt in detail to the duty officer, was told that as he had been tacked on the western half of the idge, which is in Tel Aviv, the amat Gan police did not have any risdiction.

After an argument, the Ramat an police were persuaded to call eir Tel Aviv colleagues, and a olice van was sent from Tel Aviv take the student back to the idge. There he spotted the three oungsters, evidently waiting for nother victim. They were arrest-d.

Jewish jurists call for right to leave Russia

Jerusalem Post Reporter

A resolution calling on the Soviet Union to allow free emigration of its Jewish citizens was taken by the plenary of the second International Congress of Jewish Lawyers and Jurists at its festive closing session at Binyenei Ha'ooma, Jerusalem this week.

It was noted that the present rate of emigration allowed by Russia does not exceed the Jewish population's natural rate of increase.

The congress called on all Western countries to take political, economic and legal steps to assure such free emigration, and it also expressed its support of the effort of U.S. Senator Jackson, in this matter.

Another resolution condemned the "unparalleled murder and persecution" of the Jewish communities in Syria and Iraq.

Justice Haim Cohn was chosen President of the International Association of Jewish Lawyers and Jurists, succeeding Judge Arthur Goldberg, of the U.S.

Prof. Rene Cassin, of France, the Nobel laureate, was chosen for another term as Honorary President.

Navy launches second missile boat

Peres: Sharm to be commercial port, like Haifa and Yamit

By YA'ACOV ARDON
Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA. — A clear hint that Sharm e-Sheikh would become a commercial port, complementing Haifa, Ashdod, Eilat and Yamit, was given yesterday by Transport Minister Shimon Peres as the Navy's second locally-built missile boat put to sea from Israel Shipyards here.

"Israel never had more seas and coasts and ports in all her history, ancient and modern, Mr. Peres said. "In June, 1967, the length of our coasts grew from 200 to 1,000 km. And we never had more ships than today. If we include all those on order, our merchant fleet will have five million tons, half the tonnage of the U.S., and one third of the Soviet Union, and we are planning to order one million more.

"Never have we had more ports, in fact and in potential — Haifa, Ashdod, Eilat, Yamit and Sharm e-Sheikh... The dynamics and growth of the country both follow and precede its infrastructure... In 1948 we had a total of 7,000 tons of shipping. Today the shipyards have on their order books two vessels for Zim, of 18,000 tons together."

SHIPYARDS PRAISED

Mr. Peres paid tribute to Israel Shipyards for their performance in building the missile boats, meeting the challenge of cost and quality "for a fastidious client." "The more power we build up, the less need there will be to use it... The less we are dependent on the outside world, the more the world will respect us."

With three siren blasts, the new missile boat took to the water, her crew aboard, after the Minister's wife, Sonia, ceremonially named her Keshet, smashed a bottle of champagne against her bows at the colourful launching, and after Navy Chaplain David Segal had recited a prayer for the welfare of the boat and her crew.

The Keshet is a duplicate of the first missile and gunboat, Reshef, launched five months ago, but she was built in one-fifth less working time, General Manager Israel Libertovsky pointed out, "and we hope to do still better."

All the trial runs on the Reshef have been completed to everybody's satisfaction and she is on active service. He paid tribute to the workers and staff, to the "competent supervision' of the Defence Ministry and Navy experts, the suppliers of the equipment and sub-contractors.

CREW READY

O.C. Navy Aluf Binyamin Telem said the Reshef's success in trials had enabled the Navy to provide the Keshet with a full-trained crew and to shorten their integration period. He thanked the shipyard workers who had "turned night into day" to build her as fast as they could.

Among the well-wishers were Mayor Yeruham Zeisel and Labour Council Secretary Eliezer Molk.

In a radio interview yesterday, Mr. Libertovsky urged a 10-year development plan for Israel Shipyards, culminating in the construction of vessels of up to 200,000 tons.

Druse observe pilgrim festival in Golan

Jerusalem Post Reporter

MAJDEL SHAMS. — Druse from all parts of the country gathered yesterday in north Golan to honour their patron saint Ya'afouri, whose tomb near Birket Ram is the site of an annual pilgrimage.

Ordinarily the festivities take place on August 25. Because this year this date falls on a Saturday, the celebration was advanced to enable Minister for Religious Affairs Dr. Zerah Warhaftig to attend.

The Minister said the Jewish and Druse peoples had in common that they were firmly attached to their religious and national identity and without it, they would have vanished from history. His Ministry has this year spent IL100,000 on improving Druse places of worship, cemeteries and five shrines on the Golan.

Keating presenting credentials Tuesday

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Keating is to present his credentials to President Katzir on Tuesday. Mr. Keating made his first public, but unofficial, appearance here yesterday at a reception at Beit Hapraklit for participants in the International Association of Jewish Lawyers and Jurists congress which has just closed.

Mr. Keating was invited to the reception by his old friend, Bernard Katzen, chairman of the Association's American section.

Al-Touni indicted for air piracy, risking lives

TEL AVIV. — Muhammed Ahmad al-Touni, the Libyan national who hijacked a Lebanese airliner to Lod Airport earlier this month, was indicted in the District Court here yesterday.

Al-Touni, it is charged, entered the cockpit of the Middle East Airways Boeing on August 16 about an hour and a quarter after it had taken off from Benghazi for Beirut, and ordered the pilot at pistol point to make for Israel. The pilot complied, and landed at Lod Airport. The plane was surrounded by security forces who boarded it and disarmed al-Touni. He was arrested and has been held in custody since.

The prosecution says that when he was arrested, al-Touni was found to be in possession of two pistols and a quantity of ammunition.

Al-Touni is being charged on three counts — air piracy, endangering the lives of passengers on board an aircraft, and illegal possession of weapons. He stands to receive life imprisonment if convicted of either of the first two charges. The defence will probably request a psychiatric examination, Ytim says.

Five witnesses will testify for the prosecution — O.C. Central Command, Aluf Rehavam Ze'evi; the chief air traffic controller at the airport, Mr. Barad Blauman; and three police witnesses, including a ballistics expert. (Ytim.)

Boy on murder charge for 'honour killing'

HAIFA. — A 15-year-old boy from Umm El Fahm, near Jenin, was accused in the District Court here yesterday of strangling his sister, "to redeem the family's honour."

The accused gave himself up to the police on July 29, immediately after the incident.

According to the indictment, the murdered girl, aged 18, had a record of mental illness. She had married last year, but was divorced after two months. She then went to live in Tel Aviv, and was visiting her family village when her young brother came across her in one of the streets and forced her to return to her parents' home.

Later in the evening, when she tried to get out of the house, the boy allegedly followed her, threw her to the ground and strangled her.

He is charged with premeditated murder. (Ytim)

Hashish fishers held until trial

Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA. — The four fishermen from Lebanon caught in Israel waters off Nahariya 10 days ago with a cargo of 2,330 kilograms of hashish were yesterday ordered by Judge David Behor to be held in custody pending trial. The accused sailed early this month from the Lebanon to Mersa Matrouh where they were shot at by an Egyptian coastal patrol after one or two men with them had gone ashore.

The four are Elias Nakouzi, 23, El-Sayad Hedjaz, 31, Moustafa Sambouri, 54 and Selim Shehadeh, 25.

They were cleanshaven and wearing clean clothes when they were brought to the District Court yesterday. Assistant District Attorney Yehuda Reshef charged them with illegal entry and smuggling narcotics. The accused asked for defence counsel and Judge Behor said this would be arranged.

The accused's explanation of how they failed to unload their cargo in Egypt and returned north is still obscure. It is suspected that they are shielding the identity of the men who disembarked off Mersa Matrouh, apparently highly-placed in Lebanon, on whose behalf they were attempting to smuggle hashish into Egypt.

New commanders for artillery, ordinance

Jerusalem Post Military Correspondent

Tat-Aluf Nathan Sharoni has been named Chief Artillery Officer, taking over from Tat-Aluf Arie Levy, who has been appointed to a senior post at the General Staff, it was announced yesterday.

Aluf-Mishne Elazar Barak will take over as O.C. Ordnance Corps from Tat-Aluf Haim Domi, who is retiring from active service, and will soon take up a post as head of Haifa Refineries. Dr. Barak will be promoted to the rank of Tat-Aluf.

Both appointments will take effect on August 31.

T/A Sharoni, 39, has been with the Artillery Corps since he joined the Defence Forces in 1952. During the Sinai Campaign he commanded an artillery battery, and after the war completed an advanced artillery course in the U.S. After graduating from the Command and Staff College in 1964, he received command of a mobile 155mm. battalion, and during the Six Day War participated in the breakthrough on the Golan Heights. Since July, 1972, he has served as Chief of Staff Southern Command.

The man he replaces, Tat-Aluf Levy, 39, has been Chief Artillery Officer since 1971.

Dr. Barak, 39, joined the Defence Forces in 1952, and completed his studies at the Technion in Haifa as a member of the Academic Reserves. During the Sinai Campaign he was a major figure in the absorption of equipment newly arrived from abroad. In the early 1960s, he left for the U.S. where he studied towards a doctor's degree in Science at the M.I.T.

During the Six Day War he served as officer in charge of special assignments with the forces under the command of Aluf Israel Tal, and in 1970 was named technical officer of the Ordance Corps. For the past year he has been Deputy O.C. of that corps.

Tat-Aluf Domi, 42, was with the Ordinance Corps since 1955, and in addition to holding a degree from the Technion underwent a plant management course in England, and a postgraduate course at the Columbia University in the U.S. He has been O.C. Ordnance Corps since 1966.

K.H. hospitals for members of all Sick Funds

Kupat Holim hospitals of the Histadrut will soon be open to members of all the country's sick funds, Health Minister Victor Shemtov yesterday told the Knesset's Public Services Committee.

He said the first hospital to open its doors to all sick fund members will be the Central Emek Hospital in Afula — within a few weeks' time. He explained that this is a preliminary step in anticipation of the Health Insurance Law, which has passed its first reading in the Knesset and is now being considered in the Public Services Committee.

Kupat Holim hospitals in the north will soon also adopt the integrated clinic-hospital system, the Health Minister said. Under this system, already adopted by hospitals in the south, clinic doctors will be able also to work in hospitals, thus ensuring greater continuity in the treatment of patients.

Zim's Eilat service said inadequate

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The Israel Export Institute has charged that Zim's "inadequate" cargo services out of Eilat are resulting in heavy financial loss to Israeli exporters.

The institute, an organization of local manufacturers who sell abroad, said delivery dates to customers in Iran, Australia, East and South Africa and the Far East cannot be met because of repeated breakdowns in sailing schedules from the southern port.

An inter-Ministerial committee dealing with the port of Eilat is expected to look into the complaint soon.

Waldheim coming to listen to M.E. leaders, says Tekoah

LOD AIRPORT. — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim will bring "no concrete proposals of any kind" for a Middle East settlement when he comes next week, Ambassador to the U.N. Yosef Tekoah said here yesterday.

Arriving from New York to help prepare for Dr. Waldheim's two-day visit to Jerusalem starting next Thursday, Mr. Tekoah said the U.N. official wants to hear the Israel and Arab views on the general Middle East situation. This will be the first visit of a U.N. Secretary-General to the Middle East since Dr. Waldheim's predecessor, U Thant, came in 1967, on the eve of the Six Day War.

In Jerusalem, Dr. Waldheim will confer with the Prime Minister and Foreign Minister and pay a courtesy call on the President. Mr. Tekoah said he had met the Secretary-General before leaving New York on Wednesday and briefed him on the situation of the Jews in the Soviet Union and the Arab countries.

He told newsmen at Lod Airport that progress towards a Middle East peace settlement could begin only if Dr. Waldheim heard from Arab leaders their willingness to start "serious negotiations" with Israel.

Mr. Tekoah also stressed that there was no connection between the Secretary-General's tour and the past visits of U.N. special envoy Gunnar Jarring.

In reply to a question, Mr. Tekoah said that the Arabs well understand that they cannot achieve their objectives by force, and that they are beginning to understand that a settlement cannot be reached through public debates alone.

"But in the recent Security Council and international aviation discussions there were signs that the Arabs are trying to put pressure on Israel by means of sanctions," he said. "I have no doubt that they will soon find out that these tactics will also not alter Israel's policy." (Ytim.)

Jailed for exploiting wife as prostitute

TEL AVIV. — The District Court here yesterday sentenced a local procurer to four years imprisonment for living off the illegal earnings of his wife, and for brutally assaulting her.

Avraham Allon, 25, of Tel Aviv, was convicted of forcing his wife to work as a prostitute between 1969 and 1973, and living off her earnings. In March 1970, he attacked his wife in their apartment and caused her serious injuries.

Allon, who has an extensive criminal past, was also alleged to have lived with another woman and taken her earnings as a prostitute. The judge described the case as "a particularly ugly one," and sentenced Allon to 42 months imprisonment on the pimping charge and another six months for beating his wife.

Kol's plan for Beaches Authority under attack

By SARAH HONIG
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The Union of Local Authorities has flatly rejected the proposal of Tourism Minister Moshe Kol that maintenance of the country's beaches be taken out of the hands of the local authorities and entrusted to a separate authority.

The Minister says the trouble in dealing with the filth and overcrowding at the beaches is due to the fact that each small section is within the jurisdiction of a separate local authority, between whom there is no coordination.

Mr. Ze'ev Mellion, Secretary of the Union of Local Authorities, told The Jerusalem Post that Mr. Kol "would have done far better to try and communicate with the local authorities and attempt to seek joint solutions to the problems, rather than unjustly blaming them for everything."

Mr. Mellion, speaking on behalf of the mayors, says: "The one thing which is sorely needed to speed up the development of the beaches is money. If sufficient funds were made available, the local authorities would be able to do far more to make the beaches pleasant."

The Tourism Ministry, he says, has "not given the cities any financial assistance whatever, to improve the beaches."

In a letter to Mr. Kol, the Union reiterates its stand that the beaches are "an inseparable part of the areas of many towns around the country, and they have no intention of relinquishing them." The letter calls on Mr. Kol to work together with the Union and the local authorities to improve the beaches.

Immigrants retrain

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Approximately 800 recent immigrants are enrolled in 26 various retraining courses aimed at helping them prepare for suitable employment, the Absorption Ministry has announced.

The latest group is one of 60 engineers who are registered for a one-year training course with Koor Metal Industries.

In Ramat Rahel, south Jerusalem, 21 Soviet, South American and immigrants are studying bookkeeping, in a course given by the Treasury, and upon graduation they will be qualified as income tax auditors. In Tel Aviv, 35 women immigrants have just begun a one-year course in home economics, after which they will teach the subject in schools within their own communities. The students are all former teachers whose fields of specialization are not needed in Israeli schools.

Finally, a group of more than 100 immigrant school teachers are about to complete a summer refresher course being given by the Education Ministry at the Netanya Ort School and at Jerusalem's Beit Hakeram Teachers Seminary.

Next month more courses will be opened, including one at the Technion, for industrial and environmental engineers.

Tot latest victim in Argentine kidnapping

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter). — A two-year-old boy has become the latest victim of Argentina's wave of almost daily kidnappings, the child's family reported yesterday. They said that four men and a woman snatched the boy, Mariano Vaneskehian, from a maid after entering his home posing as delivery men.

The kidnappers were demanding a ransom of $240,000 from the boy's father, an executive at a Buenos Aires tanning works.

Last week kidnappers snatched six-year-old Emma Bergamasco at an industrial town outside Buenos Aires. The family received a ransom demand for $700,000. The child has not yet been returned.

Kidnappers are demanding a $5m. ransom for Juan Alberto del Carlo, executive of a firm making rubber cushions, who was snatched 10 days ago.

In another development on Wednesday night, a 35-year-old woman was kidnapped in a Buenos Aires suburb as she parked her car.

Fast new cure for gonorrhea

WASHINGTON (UPI). — A glassful of pleasant-tasting medicine is being marketed as a 48-hour cure for gonorrhea, America's most common infectious disease except for the cold.

The new liquid drug, a combination of ampicillin and probenecid, was found 90 per cent effective last year by the Public Health Service but so far only one company, Bristol Laboratories of Syracuse, New York, has received Food and Drug Administration approval to sell it.

An FDA official said persons allergic to pencillin should not use the drug, although he said allergic patients can avoid the pencillin side effects by drinking a lot of water and juices.

The PHS has estimated at least three million Americans have gonorrhea, making it the most common infectious disease except for the cold, and the Federal Government is expected to be the largest buyer.

Arson at Arab refugee camp in Bavaria

ZIRNDORF (Reuter). — Arsonists yesterday set fire to the rooms of five Arabs at an overcrowded refugee camp in this Bavarian village, a spokesman for the camp said.

The rooms were unoccupied at the time of the incident, and there were no injuries, he added.

The arsonists — their exact number was not known — scattered methylated spirits on the beds and placed fuses made of match-boxes and burning cigarettes under the pillows. Three of the five rooms were burnt out.

There are currently 550 refugees at the camp, most of them Arabs. The official capacity of the camp is 500, and disgruntled inmates may have started the fire.

According to recent newspaper reports, Arabs expelled from West Germany in the wake of last September's Munich Olympic massacre are now filtering back into the country via East Berlin, and swelling the number of refugees at the camp.

The spokesman declined to comment on whether police, whose inquiries were continuing last night, suspected political motives for the arson.

3 executed in Iraq as Iran spies

BEIRUT. — Three Iraqis were executed on Monday after being convicted of working for the Iranian intelligence, Iraq announced yesterday.

They were found guilty, along with five others, of forming a spy ring which communicated political and military information to the Iranian intelligence service, according to the Government statement.

Iraq and Iran have been locked in dispute since 1969 on the matter of sovereignty over the border waterway of Shatt El-Arab at the northwestern corner of the Persian Gulf.

In January 1971, Iraq executed 42 persons within three days on charges of staging an allegedly Iranian-backed attempt to overthrow the socialist regime of the Ba'ath Party.

The new executions brought to 133 the total of officially announced executions by the regime that roused the world's anger with spy trials and public hangings, including 14 Jews, in 1969. (Reuter, UPI)

Turkey cracks $2m. counterfeit ring

ISTANBUL (Reuter). — Turkish police said yesterday they had broken up the biggest counterfeit currency racket in the country's history, after seizing some $2m. worth of U.S. bills. The centre of the operation was a printing works in the heart of Istanbul's newspaper district.

'Pravda' raps Israel policy of 'gangsterism'

MOSCOW (UPI). — The Communist Party newspaper "Pravda" said yesterday that gangsterism, terror and air piracy have been elevated to the rank of national policy in Israel.

"Pravda" said the unanimous condemnation by the U.N. Security Council of Israel's interception of an Arab airliner "testifies to the isolation of those who would like to impose by force their domination in the Middle East."

Israel's "gangsterism" is supported by "bellicose circles in the U.S. and a number of other Western countries which find this policy of Tel Aviv suited to their interests," "Pravda" said.

Pointing out that the Israeli Authorities amended the country's criminal code last year to extend Israel's jurisdiction to the entire world, it said, "Such 'legal' tricks were made perhaps only in the time of the Nazi Third Reich."

Psychiatric tests for boys charged in Houston murders

HOUSTON (Reuter). — A judge yesterday ordered psychiatric tests on two youths charged in connection with the Houston homosexual killing of 27 boys.

Judge William Hatten ordered the tests on Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18, after hearing prosecution arguments that "the magnitude, the complexity and the atrocity and depravity of the crime" call for a total examination of mental competency.

Henley is being held under three murder indictments and Brooks is named in one murder indictment, following discovery of the victims of the largest multiple killing in modern American history.

The examinations — ordered despite objections from defence lawyers — will be carried out by three psychiatric consultants to Harris County, in addition to an independent psychiatrist and any other doctors chosen by the defendants.

Yesterday's hearing was held under a security clampdown following threatening telephone calls and a letter to the district attorney's chief prosecutor.

Bailiffs formed a ring behind the defendants and stood guard outside the courtroom door.

Assistant district attorney Michael Hinton said the anonymous letter "threatens everybody — prosecutors, defence attorneys — everybody." He said it had been turned over to the FBI for investigation.

Maine sues tanker for oil spill

CONCORD, N.H. (AP). — The state of Maine has sued owners of the Liberian tanker Aro for $300,000 in damages after a 4,000-gallon oil spill at Portsmouth during July 26-31.

The suit, filed in the District Court here, said the oil from the tanker "contaminated and otherwise damaged and rendered unusable or severely limited use, value and enjoyment... of tidal waters and waters of marginal and high seas."

The action is similar to a $100,000 suit filed by New Hampshire earlier this month.

The main purpose of New Hampshire's "admiralty libel" action is to establish a basis for collecting damages for loss of marine life and habitat and some clean-up costs, the New Hampshire attorney-general's office said.

Sleeping sickness kills 105 in India

CALCUTTA (AP). — A disease diagnosed as a form of encephalitis — inflammation of the brain — has killed at least 105 persons in West Bengal and doctors have been unable to stop it or treat it.

Preliminary blood tests from victims of the disease indicate it follows mosquito bites. The symptoms are severe headache, high fever, vomiting and unconsciousness.

Brooklyn indicts leaders of Black Liberation Army

NEW YORK (AP). — Joanne Chesimard and eight men, said to be leaders of the "Black Liberation Army," have been indicted in connection with a series of holdups and shootings, District Attorney Eugene Gold of Brooklyn announced yesterday.

Gold said the group was dedicated to "killing cops" and supported themselves by robberies. The authorities in several areas have accused the Black Liberation Army of attacking policemen.

Miss Chesimard, 25, is in custody in New Jersey, charged with killing a state trooper. She also faces a bank robbery charge here. She has pleaded innocent in both cases.

Vengeance murder in Ulster

BELFAST (UPI). — Vengeance killers kidnapped a 20-year-old Catholic farmer as he kissed his fiancee goodnight and shot him dead early yesterday, near the border town of Newry, police said.

Agnes O'Hare, 18, said she was sitting in a car with Sean McDonnell outside her rural home, when men piled out of two passing cars and dragged him away.

"They ordered me into the house and pushed Sean in the back of a car," she said. "Before they drove off one of them said: 'This is for Isaac Scott'."

Scott was a 41-year-old Protestant labourer shot dead as he left a bar in the area last month.

Police said they later found McDonnell, who had been shot several times in the head, lying beside a burning car, which was stolen on Wednesday night.

He was the 868th person killed in four years of non-stop violence in Northern Ireland.

In London it was announced yesterday that Prime Minister Edward Heath will visit Northern Ireland next Tuesday and Wednesday. It will be his third visit to the province since civil strife broke out there in 1969. Mr. Heath plans to meet with elected political leaders and British Army units fighting the IRA.

Rumanian P.M. in Moscow for talks

MOSCOW (UPI). — Rumanian Premier Ion Gheorghe Maurer arrived yesterday from Bucharest and was met by Premier Alexei Kosygin, the Tass news agency said.

Mr. Maurer is the fifth East European premier to come here in the past two weeks for what the Soviets have described as an effort to coordinate five-year economic plans of member countries of Comecon, the East European equivalent of the European Common Market.

The Premiers of Poland, Hungary, East Germany and Bulgaria already have been here.

Fire guts top of Frankfurt skyscraper

FRANKFURT (AP). — Fire burned out the six top storeys of West Germany's tallest building early yesterday morning, causing heavy damage. The police were investigating the cause of the blaze.

The 43-storey skyscraper, which towers above downtown Frankfurt a few blocks from the main railroad station, was still under construction. Burning materials and red-hot pieces of steel fell from the 550-foot structure. Police evacuated inhabitants of the neighbourhood.

Firemen were hampered at first because their hoses were only long enough to reach halfway up the building. But the fire was brought under control within several hours.

CABLES IN BRIEF

JAIL. — Jerry Fairris, 38, appealed against a 60-year jail term imposed for the killing of another man, so the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in Houston ordered a new trial. After deliberating only 20 minutes at the end of the second trial, the jury increased his sentence to 999 years.

JETS. — American Ambassador Francis Galbraith yesterday handed over 16 T-33 jet training planes to Indonesian Defence Minister General Maraden Panggabean at an air base in East Java. The planes are part of the U.S. $18m. military aid programme for last year.

Eighty casualties on 'quiet day' in Vietnam

SAIGON. — Nearly 80 soldiers were killed or wounded on a relatively quiet day in the officially peaceful South Vietnamese countryside, according to South Vietnamese military reports yesterday.

A military spokesman said the mountain camps defending the approaches to the old imperial city of Hue were hit by a total of 337 mortar shells on Wednesday, killing four soldiers and wounding another six.

No infantry attacks were reported in the area but the shelling inflicted more casualties than a 1,300-round barrage there three days ago when one soldier was wounded.

Communist activity is reported to have increased in the mountains west of Hue this week but no troop movements of the kind which normally precede a major attack have been detected, according to military sources.

In Cambodia, government troops yesterday recaptured three Communist-held positions on the outskirts of Kompong Speu. The town, 48 kms. southwest of Phnom Penh, came under the attack earlier this week and government reinforcements were sent in to help stem the Communist threat. (UPI, Reuter)

'Tax prostitution,' she said — so French gov't demands $37,000

MULHOUSE, France (AP). — A prostitute who suggested that her profession be taxed has had her wish granted: she has been slapped with a demand for the equivalent of $37,000 in back taxes. "I won't pay," Jacquelin Trappler told newsmen yesterday. "I didn't make all that much money anyway, these last four years."

Mrs. Trappler brought attention to herself recently by demanding that the government reopen French brothels. She has been backed by Mrs. D. Richard, the former Paris city councillor who sponsored the closure law in 1946. Under present law, prostitution is legal, but procuring and operating brothels are subject to severe prison terms.

Mrs. Trappler, a medium-sized brunette who looks about 40, seeks "eros centres" in which prostitutes could practise their trade without needing the protection of a procurer. Under such an arrangement, she said, the government could perhaps levy a tax to pay the costs.

The letter she got from the tax inspector put her income since 1969 at an estimated 460,000 francs, or about $115,000. Taxes were estimated at $37,000.

"I don't know on what basis they have figured this out," Mrs. Trappler said. The French Finance Ministry has several times been reported to be studying ways of taxing prostitutes but so far has not come up with an enforceable system.

Mrs. Richard's turnaround on the brothel question is motivated by the need for women to be truly liberated. "The law which carries my name is out of date," she said in a recent radio interview. "I struggled all my life not against prostitution but for the liberation of women. And in 1973 a woman's freedom requires that she be allowed to do whatever she likes with her body."

Mrs. Trappler's demands for better working conditions seem to have annoyed at least four Mulhouse prostitutes. They spotted Mrs. Trappler in a cafe on Wednesday night and descended on her.

"There is the one who wants to gild herself at our expense," she quoted the women as saying.

"Then they grabbed me by the arms and two of them slapped and scratched me," Mrs. Trappler recounted.

Out of professional solidarity, she did not press charges.

'I AM NOT A SERF'

Solzhenitsyn demands transfer to Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI). — Novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn, in a letter made public yesterday, denounced the refusal of Soviet authorities to let him live in Moscow with his family and said, "I am not a serf, not a slave."

The Nobel Prizewinning author described the Soviet system as lacking in "human or legal considerations," and said that the residence restrictions Soviet authorities impose "hardly exist even in colonial countries in the modern world."

Solzhenitsyn — long in official disfavour because of his writings — made the statements in a letter to Interior Minister Nikolai Shchelokov. The letter was made available to Western newsmen yesterday.

"I, like any other citizen of this country, am not a serf, not a slave, and I am free to live where I think it necessary," Solzhenitsyn said in the letter. "No one, not even the highest authorities, has any proprietary rights to sever me from my family."

Solzhenitsyn has been trying to get permission to live in Moscow since last spring, when he won a 16-month legal battle to divorce his first wife. He then married Natalya Svetlova, with whom he has lived for three years.

His new wife, who is the mother of his two young sons, has an apartment in central Moscow. Normally, persons who marry residents of Moscow are automatically given permission to live in the capital.

But Solzhenitsyn said his residence application was turned down about a week ago. For some time he lived in a small cottage at the country home of cellist Mstislav Rostropovich. But after his second marriage, he moved into a rented summer home outside Moscow, and has told friends he will have no place to live when the lease expires this fall.

"I would be perplexed at what human or legal considerations could prompt the prohibition for a husband to live wtih his wife, and a father to live with his tiny sons, if I had not known from long experience that neither of them exists under our state system," Solzhenitsyn said.

Greek amnesty also releases Stathis

ATHENS (AP). — Stathis Panagoulis, the brother of President George Papadopoulos' would-be assassin, was released yesterday, the last of about 300 political prisoners freed under an amnesty. His brother, Alexander, was released Tuesday.

Stathis, 27, was sentenced to 4½ years imprisonment last January for forming an underground organization seeking to free his 34-year-old brother from prison. He also was sentenced to another 58 months imprisonment for failing to report for military induction. Both offences were pardoned.

Stathis, however, will have to report for military duty Friday, his lawyer said.

Alexander Panagoulis was sentenced to life imprisonment for attempting to kill Papadopoulos in August 1968. The amnesty was declared by Papadopoulos last Sunday.

'Bombs' were Irish lottery tickets

LONDON. — Six suspected letter bombs at Luton, north of London, turned out yesterday to be packages containing Irish Sweepstake tickets.

Explosives experts examined the packages after seven letter bombs were received by official and armed forces organizations on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Post office workers had become suspicious of the Luton packets because they all bore Irish Republic postmarks and fictitious addresses.

There were no more reports yesterday of fire bombs which had been discovered in fashionable London department stores since late last Saturday night. There have been no injuries and little damage. There were two bomb scares in the Manchester area yesterday but nothing was found in either case.

Meanwhile, police issued a composite photograph of a young couple they want to question in connection with a bomb explosion in the north London suburb of Hampstead on Monday night.

In Northern Ireland, political sources said the incendiaries and parcel bombs found in London were the work of a British-based unit of the Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army. But, they said, it was uncertain whether the campaign was launched with the approval of the IRA leadership.

Kissinger seen improving conduct of foreign policy

By KENNETH J. FREED

WASHINGTON (AP). — Henry Kissinger's ascension to the role of Secretary of State should improve the Nixon administration's ability to conduct foreign policy.

By nominating Kissinger to replace William Rogers, Nixon took the one dramatic step many diplomats and U.S. officials felt could break the stagnation that was beginning to envelop diplomatic manoeuvring.

One State Department source said Kissinger as Secretary of State would show the world that Nixon is determined to conduct foreign policy on the fullest possible scale.

"There was always the doubt that Kissinger would leave or, at the least, become demoralized by Watergate and his association with involved (White House) staffers," the source said.

CONGRESS ATTITUDE

"This had some foreign powers not only doubting Nixon's ability to exercise authority over Congress, but fearing he would lose the most impressive man in the administration concerning foreign affairs," the source added.

Because Kissinger will combine being Secretary of State with his current job as national security adviser, he will probably become the most important non-elected figure the U.S. has ever experienced in foreign affairs.

This power should remove any concern about Kissinger's leaving the government any time soon. It also should go a long way toward enhancing the administration's position in Congress.

A congressional source said Kissinger is well thought of by key Senate and House members, many of whom felt Rogers spoke with very little authority or knowledge when he appeared on Capitol Hill.

An even brighter outlook concerns the reaction of other governments. Diplomats serving in Washington expressed pleasure on hearing of Kissinger's appointment.

One Western European source said Kissinger's nomination means Nixon is determined to carry out his foreign policy.

Eastern European diplomats said Kissinger will be even more effective in moving forward on improving American relations with the Soviet Union.

A representative of an Asian country expressed some concern because Kissinger is said to be relatively weak in matters concerning Japan. At the same time, this diplomat said, Kissinger may be forced to deal with the growing importance of the Tokyo government. In that sense, he welcomes Kissinger's new role.

DEP'T MORALE

Kissinger's appointment also will have a major impact on the State Department apparatus, which has been seriously impaired under Rogers and not only by Watergate.

A major cause of the low morale of the department has been Kissinger's independence and superiority in outlining most major foreign policy decisions.

Some department officials reached after Nixon's announcement were both resentful and glad. One foreign service officer said, "He has been sniping at Rogers and conniving to get him out since he got into the White House." He then added: "Well, it will be an improvement over the way things have been... at least Kissinger counts."

There is no doubt Kissinger's presence will raise the prestige of the department because he will combine policy making with implementation under the agency seal.

Some department officials also say Kissinger's appointment means more progress will be made in important unspectacular areas, particularly on economic issues.

LITTLE DONE

As national security adviser Kissinger largely overlooked such matters, and as a result little was accomplished. The State Department was hesitant to act decisively without prior approval by the national security adviser.

Now, Kissinger will be faced with economics and other underpublicized issues and that means, one source said, he will have to deal with them.

Whether Kissinger will be able to keep up State Department morale will largely be a test of his ability to successfully delegate administrative matters to others.

He acknowledges a lack of administrative ability and he has been criticized for failing to allot responsibility to aides.

Department officials say they hope Kissinger will delegate routine and administrative matters to others and concentrate his and the agency's basic talents on policy matters.

"That's the only way he's going to whip this place," said one middle-level state official.

Witch-doctor wants to aid England win World Cup

NAIROBI (UPI). — England need worry no more about qualifying or even winning the World Soccer Cup next year. A Kenyan witch-doctor has written to manager Sir Alf Ramsey to offer his services to ensure victory.

Shariff Omar Abubakr describes himself as one of East Africa's leading witch-doctors and this week wrote to the England manager as follows:

"Dear Sir Ramsey, I understand that England is anxious to win back the World Cup in Munich and that the chances of this aim are rather slim. I am interested in signing a one- or two-year contract with you with a view to improving England's chances..."

England, World Cup winners in 1966, still has a tough qualifying match against Poland in October which must be won to ensure a place in the last 16 finalists. Abubakr, currently guiding the fortune of Kenya's most successful club side, the Brewers, described how his powers work.

"I forecast the result of a game and then make it happen. The first step is to fast. I abstain from sex and recite prayers from the Koran. During the game when an opposing player gets the ball, I often make him see double or even turn the ball into a snake. If the opposing player gets near the goal, I can make the ball go wide of target or if my players begin to get tired I can make them full of life again," he said.

Abubakr said he wanted to turn his powers to the international field. "If I have no luck with Sir Alf, I shall try to sign up with a club in Germany."

Two Nazis get life terms in German court

WEST BERLIN (Reuter). — Two former S.S. men were sentenced to life imprisonment here yesterday for the wartime murder of 45 Polish Jews in Nazi-occupied Poland. The accused, Johann Cobaecker, 61, and Hans Quarabusch, 68, were found guilty of killing 25 and 20 Jews respectively near Cracow in 1941 and 1942.

Passing sentence, presiding Judge Walter Schwertner said yesterday the accused had acted "on their own initiative, and without orders."

Defence counsel for the accused announced they would appeal. They said they doubted the credibility of the alleged killings.

Eighty witnesses from Israel, the U.S., West Germany and Poland testified at the five-month trial. The accused were originally charged with the murder of 108 and 35 people respectively, but the court later reduced the number in view of what it termed insufficient evidence.

Nato launches new air defence computer

LONDON (Reuter). — The £110m. Nadge computerized air defence system is now operational throughout the Nato area with the handing over of the last sites in the Eastern Mediterranean, it was announced here yesterday.

Robert Reed, President of Nadgeco Limited, the British-based consortium of international electronic companies which built the system covering 4,800 kms. said: "Nato now has the best large-scale air defence system in the world."

It stretches from the Arctic Circle to Asia Minor and involves a complex system of radar, computer and other electronic subsystems for the detection, identification and interception of intruding aircraft.

Nadge (Nato Air Defence Ground Environment) became fully operational in Western Europe last March. The last of the Eastern Mediterranean sites, in Greece, were handed over to the Greek Government by the contractors on Tuesday.

The consortium is headed by the Hughes Aircraft Company of California and includes AEG-Telefunken of Germany, Signaal Apparazen of Holland, Marconi of Britain, Selenia of Italy and Thomson-CSF of France.

Boell protests plan to examine Meinhof's brain

MUNICH (Reuter). — Eighteen West German intellectuals, including Nobel Prize-winning novelist Heinrich Boell, yesterday publicly protested against plans to examine the brain of alleged terrorist leader Ulrike Meinhof, who is now in prison.

Mrs. Meinhof, 38, has been detained without trial for the last 14 months on terrorism charges. She has been accused of leading the Baader-Meinhof group through a series of bank robberies and bomb explosions in West Germany last year.

Federal prosecutors recently won a Constitutional Court ruling that they were entitled to examine Mrs. Meinhof's brain to discover whether she was still feeling effects from a brain tumor operation several years ago. They wanted to establish whether the operation had impaired her responsibility.

Japan 'thank you' delegation in Syria

BEIRUT (AP). — A Japanese delegation "carrying Japan's gratitude" to Arab countries which helped the passengers of a Japanese jumbo jet hijacked to the Middle East last month, arrived in Damascus, Syria, yesterday, the Syrian state radio reported.

The delegation, headed by Parliamentary Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs Kiyoshi Mizuno, earlier visited Libya, where the Boeing 747 was blown up by three Arab and one Japanese hijackers at the end of the five-day-long incident.

Moscow silent on appointment

MOSCOW (Reuter). — The Soviet press and radio yesterday reported the appointment of Dr. Henry Kissinger as U.S. Secretary of State and the resignation of William Rogers without comment.

But Moscow observers said there could hardly be any doubt that Soviet leaders would welcome Dr. Kissinger's appointment since his three known visits to the Soviet Union had all been linked with favourable developments in Soviet-American relations.

In Paris, the newspaper "France Soir" yesterday said Henry Kissinger's nomination as U.S. Secretary of State "only consecrates a fact. In truth, the grey eminence of President Nixon has been for several years the true artisan of U.S. foreign policy."

Diplomatic observers noted that Kissinger and Foreign Minister Michel Jobert have a good working relationship and have met substantively at least twice this year, once in Paris and once in San Clemente.

Scali hints at new Nixon plans in M.E.

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter). — The American U.N. Representative, John Scali, on Wednesday hinted at possible new moves by President Nixon in the Middle East dispute.

"The President recognizes the powder-keg possibilities there, and I would not be surprised if you would see some kind of action — not immediately, but in a matter of months," he told an interviewer on the NBC "Today" programme.

Mr. Scali indicated that such moves would depend on the response of the two sides in the Arab-Israeli dispute. He gave no further details.

Mr. Scali told NBC's U.N. correspondent Pauline Frederick that from talking to President Nixon, he felt there was "no single issue that causes the President more pain and more heartache, and causes him to pay more attention," than the Middle East.

"In the year of Europe, I think it would be a grave disservice to believe that the President is so preoccupied with what is going to happen on the European continent that he has put the Middle East on the back burner, because that is not so."

Questioned about the role of oil in U.S. Middle East policy, Scali said the basic American position was "an effort to find a middle way, an effort to encourage both the Arabs and the Israelis to sit down in a meaningful dialogue, either directly or indirectly, to see whether or not this long-standing, very bitter dispute can be resolved."

While the energy crisis had to be taken into account, "it is my view that oil, or the absence of oil from the Middle East, specifically for the U.S., will not be the determining factor in formulating policy."

OPIUM. — "Hurriet," Turkey's top-selling newspaper, predicted yesterday that the ban on the growing of opium poppies would be lifted after next October's general elections and cultivation resumed under strict control.

THE CAUSES OF BEERSHEBA'S 'RUSSIAN REVOLUTION'

Charges of anti-democratic manipulation at the recent convention of the Association of Immigrants from the Soviet Union are answered by Yona Kesse, M.K., chairman of the Association in an interview with George Leonof. The charges were put forward by Dr. Yuli Nudelman in an article in The Jerusalem Post on August 16.

Yona Kesse

"THE rowdy behaviour of the minority that disrupted the second convention of our Association in Beersheba was hardly that of 'champions of democracy.' It was characteristic of people who deliberately set out to create chaos because they realized they had no chance of winning support for their views by democratic means," Yona Kesse M.K., current chairman of the Association of Immigrants from the Soviet Union, told The Jerusalem Post.

"The charge that the convention was 'packed' by delegates not properly elected is completely untrue," he added. "On the contrary, it transpired that the small minority had in advance arranged for the presence at the convention of many non-delegates not invited by the Association. They subscribed to the clamour and interference with the work of the convention, led by a handful of actual delegates."

Mr. Kesse, one of the founders of the Association, set up nearly three years ago, ridiculed the assertion by a leader of the minority group, Dr. Yuli Nudelman, that the "revolt" was neither "a bid for power by some particular group of active immigrants" or "a provocation by an opposition party." Even if Dr. Nudelman does not aspire to such power, there is little doubt that the rebels are being encouraged and supported by elements from Herut, says Mr. Kesse.

Exploited

"It may also be true that many of the opposition delegates are not members of the right-wing parties, but it is no less certain that their various frustrations and grievances are being deliberately exploited by these parties.

"They know that immigrants from the U.S.S.R. have had their fill of 'socialism' of the communist variety and hope to capitalize on this strong dislike by winning support for the anti-socialist opposition in the forthcoming elections. Herut in particular seems to regard the Soviet Jews as potential reinforcements capable of turning their political fortunes if not at the next election, then in the one after that."

Incidentally, Mr. Kesse said, the newcomers are not anti-socialist, but appear to be suspicious of all political party activity.

Russian-born Yona Kesse, returning to charges of undemocratic procedures both in the association he heads and at its hapless Beersheba convention on August 1, stressed that every effort had been made since the association's inception to involve newcomers in its work. Tracing its short history, he said that the Association of Immigrants from the Soviet Union was formed by a group of veteran and new settlers in 1970, when Soviet immigration was in its initial trickle. The eight-man organizing committee was evenly matched — "four veterans and four newcomers, to combine experience with the direct participation of the people it was intended to benefit." At that time, the first registration yielded just over 6,000 immigrants.

"Most of them were veterans, of course, since no more than 1,000 immigrated from the U.S.S.R. in the whole of 1970," he recalled. By the time its first convention was held in 1972, Mr. Kesse, the Association's first and so far only chairman, informed the executive committee that he wished to resign because of pressure of other work, and because the association was now a going concern. He thought the post should be filled by a comparative newcomer, even if it was necessary to pay him, but he was asked to stay on.

"Actually, not a single thinking newcomer opposes the participation of veteran settlers in the association's various bodies, from the executive committee down. On the contrary, they are grateful for it. Bearing in mind the aims and functions of the association, no other arrangement is conceivable. Newcomers are unacquainted with Israeli reality and procedures, and immigrants from the Soviet Union particularly are unaware."

"We support them in the first steps they must take, help them fill in applications and translate their certificates for a nominal payment. The association arranges for loans besides those they obtain through the Jewish Agency or other absorption authorities, and advises them of their rights, including housing. We also arrange social activities aimed at quicker integration. If there are any new immigrants wanting to do this work, they are welcome to it, but none have applied."

Mr. Kesse said that the unbridled criticism voiced by the rebels at the convention was taken hard by the volunteers who constitute the overwhelming majority of the staff at the association's offices at 11 Rehov Hayarkon in Tel Aviv. "They are dedicated, work long hours with infinite patience, and all speak Russian," he said. "From their daily contacts with immigrants at the office they had no idea of the bitterness of the convention."

There is no secret as to how this work is financed — by the Absorption Ministry and the Jewish Agency — or how the funds are used, he said. A detailed statement was prepared for delegates at the convention. "It's available to anyone, and if I declined to give it to Dr. Nudelman at a meeting of the convention preparatory committee, it was because I was provoked by his brashly provocative attitude and because it had nothing at all to do with the matter then at hand," Mr. Kesse explained.

Asked about Dr. Nudelman's charge that Mr. Kesse had threatened he would "not do well in Israel," the association's chairman called this a "typical example of distortion."

"Actually, during a difference of opinion I asked him if he didn't think he should first learn something of Israeli procedures before insisting on his way of doing things, and whether he thought his crude tactics could help him into public office."

Not undemocratic

Mr. Kesse said that none of Dr. Nudelman's charges of undemocratic methods in the association had any basis in fact. When the continuing flow of immigration made it desirable to hold a second national convention, the association took steps to ensure that preparations be as thorough as possible. At the first convention in Kfar Vitkin in early 1972, the association's 150-man National Council, including a considerable number of new immigrants, co-opted another 90 newcomers, ensuring that they now dominated that body. In addition, the similarly constituted executive committee of 18 co-opted another 12 new immigrants, giving them a majority in this body.

Obviously, there could be no representative convention without a new registration of eligible voters, and this was carried out through 61 local branches and with the widest possible use of newcomers. Most of them however, shied away from this work because they "showed no particular interest in the process and had other things to worry about." Nevertheless, the census managed to register no less than 25 eligibles aged from 18 up, "despite the activities of a section of the religious parties who advised the immigrants not to register."

All names were fed into an IBM system, each local branch was given a list of voters in its area, and a deadline was publicly announced for appeals by those who were excluded — since such omission was inevitable in view of the daily ongoing process of immigration.

The National Council then authorized the Executive Committee to name a central elections committee, which it did — "resulting in a committee with a majority of Herut members," Mr. Kesse declared. "It was this very committee which endorsed the 400 delegates elected on a local basis, and the elections resulted in a surprisingly large turnout of 65 per cent."

The next step was to set up an organizing committee for the convention, and at its first meeting it elected Dr. Nudelman as its chairman. The committee held some 12 meetings, at which all resolutions to be submitted to the convention were drafted and approved by an overwhelming majority. "It was decided to hold the convention in Beersheba because of the large number of Soviet immigrants there — some 1,500 families."

Subsequently, they were also endorsed by the steering committee of the convention.

Infiltrated

"I am convinced that the resolutions, and the by-laws of the association, would have been endorsed by an easy majority of the 400 delegates if they were voted on at the convention," Mr. Kesse said. "It was because of this that a small group of delegates, backed by some 200 persons who had no right to speak and in fact 'infiltrated' into the hall, decided to disrupt the proceedings by questioning the mandates of some of the delegates."

Mr. Kesse repeated that none of the delegates had been improperly elected. Concerning the several score kibbutz representatives, "some of them were elected not by secret balloting but at open assemblies in the kibbutzim, but this was provided for by the elections committee, which permitted such procedure at localities with a small number of eligible voters."

He would not comment further on the issue, which is now a matter of litigation by the Tel Aviv district court. Following the inability of the convention's Presidium to agree on the question, it was taken to the court by several of its members, including its chairman, David Yoffi — a member of Herut.

Mr. Kesse noted that at the many meetings that preceded the convention, neither Mr. Yoffi nor any other Herut member suggested that delegates had been improperly elected. "Their rallying behind the rebels at the convention can hardly be considered as spontaneous," he added drily.

IN MEMORIAM — ISAAC ALLEN

A 'founding father of Zionism'

THE death of Isaac Allen, former New York attorney and author, at his home in Hartford, Conn. on July 25 at the venerable age of 98, has removed from the American Jewish public scene one of its renowned "founding fathers."

Among the bodies he helped to establish were the Federation of American Zionists in 1897 and the first New York Zionist Council of which he was president in 1898; the Mizrachi Organisation of America, 1912; Order B'nai Zion; the American Jewish Committee and the American Jewish Congress. He attended the 1909 Zionist Congress in Hamburg and many thereafter.

At Hitler's advent in the '30s, Allen took the chair at the first anti-Nazi meeting at the Hotel Astor, New York, when 800 organisations were represented. It later evolved into the non-sectarian Anti-Nazi League.

Born in 1875, Allen arrived in New York at the age of 16, and on that very day his father (who died in Israel some 26 years ago at 97) enrolled him in a New York Zionist group. But Isaac's lifelong dream to go on Aliya never eventuated. He frequently visited the country, sent his two sons to Jerusalem for three years in the '20s to study at the Teachers Seminary, and after the State came into being lived in Rehavia for over a year with his wife and a daughter.

Graduating from N.Y.U. Law School at 26, Allen showed an early flair for public leadership. As a student he won for his Jewish colleagues the right not to be required to take examinations on the Sabbath — a rule still strictly observed. He wrote regularly in the Yiddish press on American law, history, civics, customs and usages for the benefit of new immigrants, and also lectured publicly on these subjects.

For 20 years, until he was 93, and before failing health and eyesight struck him down, he expounded Gemara to large groups at four New York area synagogues. He went on writing articles in English Hebrew and Yiddish until 1969.

He is survived by two daughters and a son, and two grandchildren.

Hank Aaron hits 705th homer

ORIOLES WIN 10 IN A ROW

THE red-hot Baltimore Orioles won their 10th game in a row Wednesday night, rallying from a 3-0 deficit for a 4-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Meanwhile, Atlanta's Henry Aaron took another step closer to Babe Ruth's all-time record of 714 home runs, slugging the 705th of his career.

Backed by four sparkling defensive plays, the Orioles moved to within one of their single-season club record of 11 straight triumphs. Streaks of that length capped pennant winning seasons in 1970 and 1971.

In the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals overcame Hank Aaron's home run and outscored the Atlanta Braves 6-4. The homer came off pitcher Reggie Cleveland with the bases empty in the sixth inning. He hit a two-strike pitch over the left field fence, for his 32nd home run of the season.

TENNIS

AMERICAN veteran Marty Riessen, back in Davis Cup competition after a five-year layoff, beat Rumania's Toma Ovici 6-1, 4-6, 6-1, 7-5 to clinch a United States victory in the interzone finals, in Alamo, California.

The U.S. team will be attempting to win a sixth straight Davis Cup title at Cleveland in December when it faces Australia or Czechoslovakia in the championship round.

Chris Evert and Manuel Orantes swept to the singles titles in the 90,000-dollar U.S. Clay Court Open Tennis Championships, in Indianapolis.

The 18-year-old Miss Every won her second straight Clay Court title, beating England's Veronica Burton, 6-4, 6-3, while Orantes of Spain turned back Georges Goven of France 6-4, 6-1, 6-4.

★ ★ ★

ILIE Nastase of Rumania and American Stan Smith will share the No. 1 seed at the 1973 U.S. Open Tennis Championships. The tournament's acceptance committee decided it was too difficult to differentiate between Nastase and Smith. So, for the first time in the history of the Forest Hills' tourney, there will be co-seeds.

"The two will be in opposite halves of the draw, but it was felt that in recognition of their tremendous efforts, each deserved to be in the No. 1 position," a committee spokesman said.

Billie Jean King was seeded first in the women's singles.

To assist in obtaining the men's seedings, the committee used the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association rankings, Commerical Union Grand Prix points, World Championship Tennis records, and — for the first time — a statistical approach consisting of a new computerized ranking system developed by the Association of Tennis Professionals.

The other men's rankings, in order, are: Arthur Ashe, U.S., Rod Laver, Australia; Ken Rosewall, Australia; Jan Kodes, Czechoslovakia; Tom Okker, the Netherlands; Manuel Orantes, Spain; Jimmy Connors, U.S.; John Newcombe, Australia; Roger Taylor, Great Britain; Marty Riessen, U.S.; Tom Gorman, U.S.; Adriano Panatta, Italy; Nikki Pilic, Yugoslavia, and Cliff Richey, U.S.

In the women's division, Mrs. King was named the top seed in view of her Wimbledon and 1972 U.S. Open Title. Mrs. King was followed by Australia's Margaret Court; Chris Evert, U.S.; Evonne Goolagong of Australia; Kerry Melville, Australia; Rosemary Casals, U.S. and Virginia Wade of England.

CRICKET

Surrey pulled off a thrilling 29-run win over Middlesex on Tuesday to keep firmly in contention for the English country cricket championship title.

SPORTS ABROAD

They won with three balls to spare and the 20 points they took boosted them into third place in the table behind Hampshire and Northamptonshire.

John Murray, the former England wicketkeeper, made a superb 124 with three sixes and 12 fours as Middlesex chased 306 to win in 295 minutes. Murray was ninth out with six of the final 20 overs left and John Price and Larry Gomes, who earlier had been rushed to hospital with a suspected broken nose, battled bravely to save the match for Middlesex.

Price edged fast bowler Geoff Arnold in the final over and Graham Roope at slip clung to the catch.

Kent fell back to fourth place.

ATHLETICS

NORWEGIAN athletics officials are doubtful New Zealand's new world record in the 4 by 1,500 metres relay in Oslo last Wednesday will be ratified by the International Amateur Athletics Federation (IAAF).

Byron Dyce of Jamaica, running in the second leg as a pacemaker, started off without waiting to receive the baton.

"We will have to make the necessary remarks about this to the Federation's headquarters in London when we report the new record," said Egil Gulliksen, chairman of the Norwegian Athletics Association. "The decision will be up to the IAAF."

The New Zealand quartet of Tony Polhill, John Walker, Rod Dixon and Dick Quax ran the distance in 14 minutes 40.4 seconds, well inside the old record of 14.49.0 set by the French national team of Vervoort, Nicolas, Jazy and Vadoux in 1965.

SOCCER

DUTCH soccer superstar Johan Cruyff scored twice as Holland crushed Iceland 5-0 in a world soccer cup qualifying match in Amsterdam. Cruyff, about to be transferred from Ajax Amsterdam to Spain's Barcelona, scored in the eighth and 59th minutes as Holland strengthened their challenge to Belgium in European group three. The teams will meet again next week, also in Holland.

Holland now trail Belgium by two points with a game in hand. Holland have a superior goal difference and the decisive match will be the November meeting between the two countries.

JURIST SEES NO CHANGE IN DELHI POLICY ON ISRAEL

'Indians back counter-terror'

By ASHER WALLFISH
Jerusalem Post Reporter

THE chairman of the Bar Council of India, Advocate Ram Jethmalani, said this week that Israel's efforts to stamp out Arab terrorism outside its borders, in the air and on the ground, were acts of justifiable self-defence.

Advocate Jethmalani, who attended the international congress of Jewish Jurists as a guest, told The Post that no substantial press or public disapproval of Israeli counter-terror had been evident in India.

"After the Beirut raid in March," he confided with a twinkle in his eye, "I came across a great many Indians who admired the dexterity of the Israeli swoop."

The Bombay-born barrister now spends half his time in Delhi, where he pleads at the Supreme Court of India. He said that Indians in general and Indian jurists in particular tend to sympathise with Israel's situation because of their horror of terrorism. "When you strike back to protect yourselves, employing reasonable means, you are merely exercising your elementary rights."

Mr. Jethmalani recalled that Indians were hijack-conscious, and did not consider security arrangements to be onerous or bothersome. "We have had security checks for a long time on our internal plane flights from Bombay to Delhi and its seems quite normal."

He recalled that the Palestine Liberation Organisation had requested permission from the Indian authorities to open an office somewhere in the country. The P.L.O. got permission to open in Madras, apparently because it was not as major a city as Delhi or Bombay, but still important enought for prestige reasons. But the P.L.O. was foiled, because loud protests from the general public as well as the Israel-India Friendship Leagues made the issue too controversial. "In Bombay we turned out with black flags and banners to protest the plan," he said.

The Arab League had an office in New Delhi for many years, but this generally acted in the Arab rather than the Palestinian cause, and Palestinian nationalist propaganda was a rare phenomenon in India. "By and large, Arab diplomats addressing public gatherings are regularly challenged and often heckled by audiences."

Turning to global issues, Jethmalani was not overly optimistic about the prospects of the Indian Government reappraising its present cool policy towards Israel.

Apart from the considerations which always weighed in New Delhi, regarding the important Moslem minority, and the close ties with the Arab world, a new global issue was looming ever larger in Mrs. Ghandi's mind, he believed.

"The United States is giving Pakistan more and more modern arms. As a result, it is driving India into the Russian sphere, whether India likes it or not. Russian influence on India tends to strengthen India's ties with the Arab world. I think that Israel should use whatever pull it has in Washington, to argue against the increasing flow of U.S. arms to Pakistan. I would like to bring this reasoning to Israel's attention, because I think it is of vital importance today. A great deal of our problem is America's fault!"

Jethmalani said he had not encountered any difficulties on the part of the Indian authorities, in his arrangements to visit Israel, and had not heard of any such cases. Travellers going abroad had a general problem getting foreign currency, but that was something quite different. "I think the authorities are very understanding to issue a separate passport for anybody who wants to visit Israel so that he won't be embarrassed if he travels later to an Arab country."

PABLO CASALS INSPIRES

MUSIC
YOHANAN BOEHM

The Israel Festival: The Festival Youth Symphony, Pablo Casals and Alexander Schneider, conductors; Isaac Stern, violin; the Festival Chorus, Stanley Sperber, conductor (Binyenei Ha'ooma'oh, Jerusalem — August 22). P. Casals: Hymn of the United Nations; Mendelssohn: Symphony for Strings, No. 10; Vivaldi: Four Concerti; Mozart: Violin Concerto in A, K. 219; Mozart: Symphony in B-flat Major, K. 319.

THIS evening was unique in many ways: Pablo Casals, as composer and conductor, imbued it with his inspiring presence; Isaac Stern interpreted Mozart in his very personal way; Alexander Schneider led the Festival Youth Orchestra in an unorthodox albeit convincing musical manner; and the ad hoc ensemble answered the conductors' demands with surprisingly professional playing.

This was no occasion to find fault — in an evening of such uninhibited and abandoned music making. Of course not everything was perfect, but who cares as long as music is made in such a dedicated and inspired way.

The Hymn of the United Nations was written by Pablo Casals at the age of 94 and it marvellously avoids all the pitfalls of a hymn: it never gets "pompous and circumstantial" and its musical line was clearly written not by a tune-smith for a flag-waving occasion but by a musician with deep love for humanity and feeling for the brotherhood of all people. Its rendition by the Festival Chorus, prepared by dynamic Stanley Sperber at very short notice, produced volume and good sound and served the occasion splendidly.

Alexander Schneider is not a conductor in the traditional manner; he does not preoccupy himself with cutting an impressive figure for the benefit of the audience; his only concern is to get the music performed in what he feels is the best possible musical manner.

Unique feature

The sound and precision, balance and over-all performance of the orchestra attested to the devoted work during a fortnight's rehearsing at the Jerusalem Khan (which many attended—another unique feature of this programme). The Mendelssohn Symphony, which the composer wrote at a very young age, received a lively reading; the Vivaldi Concerti, a group of contrasting movements from several — perhaps too many — concerti, were pleasantly entertaining.

Then entered Isaac Stern, and immediately one felt that something extraordinary was going to happen. And indeed it did — not a performance of a concerto but an outpouring of music in its essence. Every note had its place and meaning in the phrasing; the music created moments — not a few — of indescribable bliss. Everything fell into one pattern — it was a one-time creation of some wondrous work of complete beauty. The magic of Mozart wedded to the inspiration of Isaac Stern — an incredible experience.

Pablo Casals returned to conduct Mozart's Symphony, K. 319, a beautiful work, for some unaccountable reason rarely performed. It showed the undiminished mastery of spirit over matter — Casals at 96 inspiring his predominantly teenage-musicians to give a highly enjoyable rendition of the symphony, and ending a memorable evening.

Technion student exchange draws 300 participants

Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA. — The Technion's annual Exchange of Students for Technical Experience programme this year has drawn more than 300 students, about half of them from Israel and the other half representing 20 countries.

The largest contingent comes from the Netherlands—52 students—and 47 Israel students went there. Other students come mainly from Europe, and some from North and South America.

The six-week-long exchange programme is giving the students practical experience in their fields of study during the summer vacation. The students are employed in industry, public institutions and universities.

Car insurance going up by 12 to 15%

By AARON SITTNER
Jerusalem Post Reporter

Car insurance rates are to rise between 12 and 15 per cent, probably in January.

The increase will apply to compulsory third party coverage as well as to makif (comprehensive coverage), and will become effective upon the renewal date of the individual policies.

The insurance companies, claiming losses of IL40m. last year on their automobile lines, have been pressing the Treasury for permission to raise premiums by 25 per cent. However, Savings and Insurance Commissioner Ya'acov Picker has consistently opposed such a sharp rise. The compromise reached in the past few days — 12 to 15 per cent premium increases — is considered a victory for Dr. Picker on behalf of car owners.

Dr. Picker told The Post yesterday he was pleased by the agreement, and praised the Israel Insurance Company Association for their "understanding and goodwill" in accepting the compromise.

Car insurance rates rose by 10 per cent last January, following a 15 per cent rise in January 1972 and another 15 per cent in May 1971. In July 1972 the companies also won an extra 15 per cent increase for policies covering drivers under 24 years of age.

TEL AVIV STOCKS

Small rise as dull week ends

TEL AVIV. — Stocks were mixed yesterday and turnover small again, with only IL1,378,300 worth of shares traded, IL892,200 of which in the variables. The general index of share prices rose by 0.18 per cent to stand at 286.49.

The outstanding feature was Discount A shares, which gained another 13 points to close at 618 (13,500) against 530 a week ago.

ILDC Bearer dropped five points on 16,200 shares to bring the price below the previous week's level of 214. The most active share was Lapidot Registered, which lost two points in the opening at 126 but suddenly caught demand and rose gradually to 133, only to drop again to 129 at the close, with 42,500 shares traded.

On the whole, it was a very quiet week, with the exception of the very successful Poligon issue. Some speculators might have expected this success to have had a stronger effect. The share closed yesterday at 231, down two points (38,100).

IDB bankholding gained 3½ points over the week. Bank Leumi five points, Delek five, Dubek eight, Teva Registered 36, Discount Investment four and Bank Leumi Investment two. ILDC was on the gaining side all the week, but lost all at the end to close 2½ down from last Thursday. Rassco was one down, Paper Mills seven, Wolfson two.

Convertible bonds remained stable, with slight deviation. Cost-of-living linked bonds were at bit better yesterday, and turnover increased to IL5.1m. Dollar stocks remained steady.

Stocks rebound sharply

NEW YORK (AP). — The Stock Market rebounded sharply yesterday, registering its strongest gains in several weeks.

Advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange led declines by more than two to one.

Trading was slow, and brokers said the upward trend was mostly due to technical considerations. They added that President Nixon's rebuttal on Wednesday of Watergate scandal charges also helped the market, which was heartened also by a stronger dollar abroad and lower commodity prices.

Industrials, utilities and transportation issues were all higher.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained all day and closed at 864.46, up 12.56. Advancing issues led declines 964 to 402 among 1,740 traded on the New York stock exchange.

Volume was a light total of 11.39 million shares.

5 major oil companies negotiating with Libya on nationalization

LONDON (Reuter). — Five major world oil companies are prepared to accept a 51 per cent nationalization of their holdings in Libya, but not on present Libyan government terms, informed oil sources said yesterday.

The sources said the companies, which are currently negotiating with the Libyan government, would be "digging their own grave" if they accepted the compensation and buy-back terms the Libyans were offering.

The buy-back price is the amount which the companies would have to pay the Libyan government for its share of the oil after their assets had been partially nationalized.

The companies involved in the negotiations are the Anglo-Dutch Shell company and four American oil giants — Standard Oil of California, Texaco, Mobil and Exxon.

The reason for their firm stand against Libya's terms is a fear that acquiescence could set a dangerous precedent in future nationalization discussions with other Middle Eastern and African governments, the sources said.

Already the oil companies have reached "participation" agreements with Saudi Arabia and other Gulf states, promising them a 51 per cent stake by 1982.

Libya has recently nationalized British Petroleum and the American-owned Nelson Bunker Hunt company.

It has also reached an agreement with four smaller U.S. companies — Occidental Petroleum, Marathon Oil, Amerada Hess and Continental Oil — on a takeover similar to that which it is demanding of the majors.

Under this agreement, the buy-back price for Libyan oil is 4.9 dollars per barrel.

The sources said that if this price were applied to the major oil companies it would mean in effect a one-third increase in the cost of Libyan oil.

Libya produced over 805 million barrels of oil last year, while Saudi Arabia, where the major oil companies have much larger holdings, produced 2,098.4 million barrels in the same period.

If similar terms to those demanded by Libya were applied in Saudi Arabia and the Gulf states, the consequences for the major oil companies could be disastrous, the sources said.

Otzar La'ta'asiya

The Board of Directors of Otzar La'ta'asiya Ltd., a subsidiary of Bank Leumi, has declared an interim dividend of 5 per cent (subject to income tax) for the year 1973.

CURRENCY IN circulation this week rose by IL23,456,048, to stand at approximately IL2,514m., the Bank of Israel spokesman announced yesterday. Of this amount, IL194m. was backed by gold, and IL2,319m. by foreign currency reserves.

$ closes higher: gold declines

LONDON (AP). — The dollar closed higher in European foreign exchange markets in light trading yesterday, continuing its month-long recovery.

Gold declined. The metal closed at 100 dollars an ounce in Zurich and 99 an ounce in London. It closed in both centres Wednesday at 103.

Higher interest rates have been attracting funds out of gold and into dollars for most of the past month. Other factors helping the dollar have included improved U.S. foreign trade figures and the belief that the dollar was oversold during the Watergate hearings.

Wheat shortage 'will continue'

LONDON (UPI). — The International Wheat Council yesterday predicted continued world wheat shortages in the coming year.

The report said between the beginning of July and mid-August export prices of Canadian and United States wheat shot up by around 75 per cent to more than $190 a ton.

The Council's report said at the beginning of August it became evident that Argentina's 1972 wheat crop has not come up to expectations. It noted that Argentina, Australia and the Common Market have all banned wheat exports and Canada is only selling "cautiously" to traditional customers.

However, it said crop prospects in the Soviet Union are "generally favourable' and production is expected to recover from last year's disastrously bad crop.

An estimated total of 57 million tons will be available for export from all wheat-growing countries this year compared with import requirements of 66 million tons. Last year, a total of 56 million tons was available for export and 64 million tons was needed.

The report predicted total world stockpiles of wheat may fall as low as 23 million tons this year.

If the travel tax is so unpopular

Why isn't it repealed?

Most of it will be if our bill is passed in the Knesset. It would abolish the IL600 exit fee, with a graduated reduction of the 10% assessment. You can help by letting it be known that this is not a "side issue" but one that makes you so furious you could pop. Scores of people like yourself have written us. Why not add your voice to theirs...

ZHID AND DETENTE

IT now appears that Soviet security officials have finally been given the word that the harassment of Israel's athletes at the World Student Games in Moscow and the pictures of the jeering young soldiers and goons strong-arming Russian Jews were not enhancing Russia's image abroad.

But even if the last two days of the Student Games have apparently passed without incident the damage has been done, as the article by columnist Bernard Lewin in an adjoining column shows.

Keen on promoting the atmospherics of detente with the West, the Kremlin no doubt sets great value on being named to host the Olympic Games in 1980. It would certainly not like to see the Student Games compromise the larger prize.

While the goon squads accurately expressed the brutality of Russia's anti-Semitic and anti-Israel posture, they in turn point up the larger danger; namely that for the Kremlin detente means importing aid and know-how which will enable the Soviet ruling hierarchy to maintain the social controls that keep it in power.

If there are those in the West who do not understand this, Russians themselves do. Only this week famed Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov, in a remarkable show of courage, assembled eleven Western journalists in his Moscow flat to issue precisely such a warning. Detente without some democratization in Soviet life, he said, would merely make the Soviet Union more of a menace. Recognition of this danger has led the Western nations to demand that the Soviets permit more and more free interchange with the West as a condition for agreeing to a European Security Conference.

But other political calculations and the spectre of a huge Soviet consumer market starved for Western goods have also prompted some capitals to temper the firmness of this demand.

Moscow, sensing the cracks in the Western front, no doubt believes that it can achieve its aims without having to relax its domestic controls.

It is for this reason that Prof. Sakharov has issued his warning. It may also be for this reason that the Russians decided to call a halt to the incidents that have marred the Student Games, lest they set off new Western alarms.

But the evidence of Soviet repression and the threats inherent in it are there for all to see. As in so many historical situations, anti-Semitism is merely one of its most blatant expressions. The menace is one which goes far beyond Israel or the Jewish People.

MOSCOW IS NO PLACE FOR GAMES

Bernard Levin, columnist for 'The Times' of London and well known TV personality, says that Soviet 'racialist barbarism' makes Moscow unworthy of consideration as venue of the 1980 Olympics.

IS the Olympic movement really going to commit, in 1980, the same abominable crime that it perpetrated in 1936? If so, it has even less excuse than it did on the earlier occasion.

In 1936, despite protests from all over the civilized world, the Olympic Games were staged in Berlin. The system of allocating the Games, I should explain, is that the International Olympic Committee receives applications from cities wishing to stage the Games, and then chooses among them; there also seems to be something of a convention that when there is a close vote between two cities, the runner-up has an extra claim on the right to stage the next following Games.

Naturally, in view of the immense scale of preparations necessary for the Games, the host city has to be selected well in advance — several years, in fact. Thus. Berlin was selected for the 1936 Games well before the Nazis came to power in 1933. But long before the Games actually took place, the Nazi terror had been loosed on the Jews of Germany and, just as musicians and other artists were refusing to perform there, so there grew a campaign to call off the Games in a country that was, quite simply, totally unfit to stage any spectacle dedicated to civilized values.

No account of system

Note that the protests were not based on the fact that Germany was a dictatorship; the International Olympic Committee takes no account of such things as the political system obtaining in a potential host country. The point was that Germany under Hitler was, quite rightly, considered hostis humani generis; it was a place with which no decent man in possession of the facts could voluntarily have anything to do, and particularly in the field of international friendship and amity.

The protests failed to get the Berlin Games cancelled; it was, of course, too late to transfer them to another city altogether. Whereupon, a further campaign was launched, especially in America, to persuade athletes to stay away. One of the grounds was of discrimination against Jewish athletes in Germany; the Nazis promised that they would not do so, and even announced, in words which chill the blood even now, that a group of German Jewish athletes were to be sent to the training camps. Shortly afterwards, all German Jews were deprived of German nationality, and shortly after that the Jews of Germany, athletes and others alike, were on their way to a very different kind of camp.

Nazi propaganda

Christian church organizations joined the protests: eventually half a million American signatures were gathered for a petition calling on the United States Olympic Committee to withdraw the American contingent. In vain; the Games proceeded as planned, and the result was that the Nazis turned the whole thing, as, of course, they had always intended, into a huge hymn of Nazi propaganda. (It can be seen, by those with exceptionally strong stomachs, in Leni Riefenstahl's film of the Games; she had already done the same job of slobbering adulation over the Nuremberg Rallies of the Nazi Party.)

And unless resolute action can be mounted now, the International Olympic Committee is going to do exactly the same thing all over again. The 1976 Games are to take place in Montreal; the Canadian city won the contest against Moscow. Moscow is now the favourite for the right to hold the 1980 Games and, because of the long gestation period, the International Olympic Committee must decide on the Soviet application by the end of March next year — only seven months away.

It is rumoured that no other city with the resources to stage the Games has yet applied; well, there is still time, and in any case the principle which the IOC will have to consider has nothing to do with questions like that.

Nor has it anything to do with the fact that the Soviet Union is a brutal dictatorship, though the idea of staging such a festival in that imperialist tyranny is sufficiently odious in itself. But the fact is that within the past week, not only has the official Soviet anti-semitic persecution been increased; it has been directed against Jewish athletes and, still more, against Jewish citizens of the Soviet Union who wanted to attend athletics events.

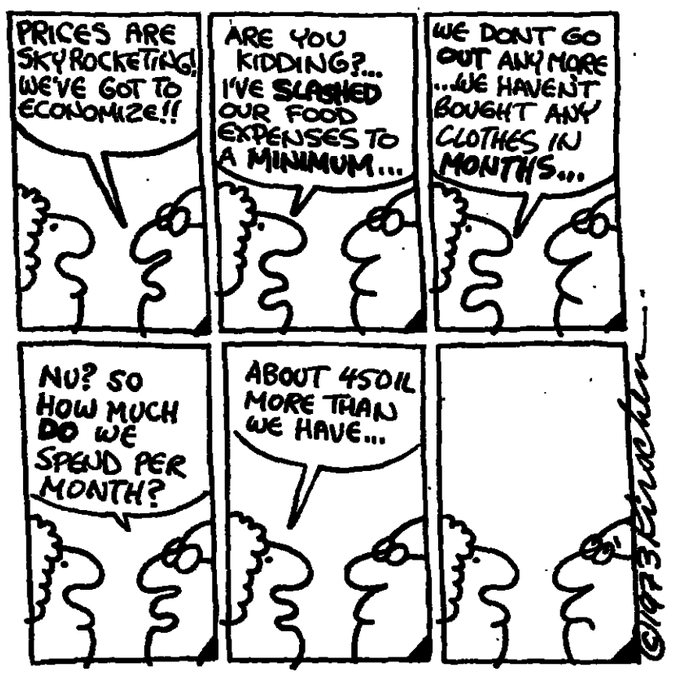
The World Student Games have been taking place in Moscow. They have, of course, been used as a propaganda weapon, but that was to be expected. More to the point, Soviet Jews with valid tickets have been refused entry to the stadium for events in which Israeli athletes were competing, and manhandled by security toughs into the bargain, while the seats have been filled with Soviet storm-troopers whose job was to shout abuse at the Jewish competitors.

Now, perhaps, it can be seen why I ask whether the IOC is going to make, not just a mistake, but the same mistake as its predecessor did in 1936. Why I say that, if they do, they will have even less excuse than their predecessors in that, in 1936, many honest people simply could not believe that states could behave as the Nazi State did. The world learnt the hard way that states can indeed behave like that; and nobody now has any excuse whatever not to know the history of Soviet tyranny from the days of Stalin's extermination camps to the present actions of his heirs and assigns, who grew to their present power by carrying out his policies and whose own terror, though for the present far less dreadful than his, is the worst anywhere in the world.

What's happening now

And, even as I write, it is being directed, as no persecution since the days of Hitler and Stalin has, against the Jews of Russia — and one of its current manifestations, moreover, is precisely in the field of athletics. It is no use saying that the Games that may be allocated to Moscow are not to take place until 1980, and that much can happen between now and then. The evidence on which the IOC must decide is evidence about what is happening in the Soviet Union now. The regime there has shown itself, by its actions, unfit to stage the Games. Soviet promises of amendment, which will in any case not be forthcoming, would be worthless. The IOC representatives from the Soviet Empire will, of course, next March vote the way they are told to; and in view of the fate they could expect for disobedience it is not for us to blame them. But the rest of the world is under no such obligation. When the IOC meets to decide on the venue for the 1980 Games, I hope it will have several worthy applications before it. (Where is the civic pride of Glasgow, for instance, and what about the Games being staged jointly, in some agreed place, by Black Africa?) But even if there is no other offer at all, the Soviet authorities must be told that their particular brand of racialist barbarism, in sport as in all things, makes them unworthy of consideration.

Dry Bones



ISRAEL PRESS

Rogers and Kissinger

Davar (Histadrut) expects no great change in the U.S. State Department attitude as a result of the replacement of William Rogers by Dr. Henry Kissinger, since the Middle East is one of the fields where the latter remained unobtrusive in regard to his predecessor. Personal diplomacy and personality however hold out hope.

Hatzofe (N.R.P.) sees Dr. Kissinger's appointment almost as a formal recognition of a prevailing fact. The new Secretary of State has been the President's foreign policy adviser and now he will administer the State Department as well. One hopes that the Secretary of State's Jewishness won't complicate matters as it hasn't in the past.

Haaretz (non-party), discussing the terrorists in Cairo, notes they are nothing new. President Sadat does this quite regularly. This time the impending rapprochement between Egypt and Jordan precipitated this round of meetings. The Egyptian President also views the terrorists as the only effective weapon against Israel today capable of keeping the world from forgetting Middle East problems.

Omer (Histadrut), writing on Mrs. Meir's decision to attend the European Council, stresses the great importance attached to Europe in Israeli eyes. Beyond its intrinsic importance, Europe is one of a limited number of world areas where we can hope to improve our image and standing.

L'Information, writing on the Moscow Universiad, says the relapse of the Jewish image to pre-Israel proportions is complete with the inner debate as to whether we should or should not participate in international sports meets in the face of such affront. "L'Information" weighs this question as well and concludes that a sustained fight against this enemy effort is in order: "Israel is the negation of the ghetto and not its transformation into a sovereign state."

Shearim (Poalei Agudat Yisrael) says Russia needs the fracas at the Universiad. Their propaganda is in critical condition.

KIBBUTZ VOLUNTEERS

Happy serfs

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post

Sir, — Mrs. Goldberg's statement that volunteers are used as serfs (August 7) is both an insult to the intelligence of the volunteers and proves that Mrs. Goldberg should visit Kibbutz Maanith. There, 20 20 "serfs" from Britain and 20 "serfs" from all over the world enjoy the hospitality of the real Israeli. The expression "serf" implies that we work for a feudal lord under duress. This choice of the word is, to say the least, unrealistic and untrue and shows that Mrs. Goldberg should spend some time with us. But perhaps she does not wish to encounter happy serfs.

JOHN LAWRENCE

Sir, — I read with amusement Mrs. Goldberg's letter (August 7). As a kibbutz volunteer of four months, I would like to give my version. I knew when I left Australia what I was coming to — as the writer of the letter said — to a wholesome dedicated, cheerful, non-materialistic way of life. As far as the factory goes, the volunteers work six hours a day and get fed, clothed, paid and insured. On the social side, the volunteers get trips around Israel — the country that the kibbutzniks are so justly proud of.

I think that Mrs. Goldberg should speak to some of the volunteers who have lived in the profit and gain society and get their views.

CRITICISM OF RESEARCHERS

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post

Sir, — Health Minister Shemtov gave absolutely no reason for rejecting Dr. Geoffrey Berlyne's criticism of the water supplies in the Arava and his repeated warning that drinking of the Arava water can be a health hazard (July 26). The chemical analysis of the water is known, the physiological effects of such high mineral content in the water are known, the World Health Organization's conservative recommendations on this subject are known and, by any standard, the water is not fit to drink on a long-term basis. It may be politically expedient to refuse to install water purification systems in the Arava. That does not alter the view that, in his unwarranted indictment of a respected Israeli physician-researcher, Mr. Shemtov is playing with our public health.

HOMES FOR SABRAS

The truth about Dimona

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post

Sir, — The purpose of this letter is to correct some unfortunate errors concerning the Bnei Israel in Dimona in David Landau's article of August 10. The article was one-sided and fostered an undeserved image of the community.

It did not mention the general peacefulness of the Indians, their fierce desire to give their children a quality education, and their unending desire to further their own lot.

What was written of the Indians' drinking problem is not true of the general community, but of a small minority. The problem also exists among other communities in Dimona.

The writer sadly misconstrued both my statements and those of Naomi Naon. It was I, as a social worker, who talked of the drinking problem, not she.

•

Sir, — I read with shock and disappointment David Landau's remarks on Indian Jews in his article on Dimona (August 10).

Mr. Landau arrived at my home at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and asked me to take him to families that do not get help from the social services. I took him to one family, and to no other Indian homes as mentioned in the article. I agree this family lacked the luxury of a refrigerator and a clean home and that the sight was distressing, but not to the unimaginable extent described by your reporter.

I utterly deny that I told Mr. Landau anything about drunkenness among Indians.

NAOMI NAON
Dimona, August 22.

David Landau is abroad on holiday at present.—Ed. J.P.

Sir, — With reference to David Landau's article on Dimona, I wish he had met some intellectual Indians here and studied the Indians more closely. — their way of life and their problems.

The first image of Dimona which was registered by Mr. Landau was that of an Indian woman in a sari hanging out her washing on the barbed wire of her shikun. He should know that almost every Indian woman wears a sari, which is a traditional and graceful Indian dress, and it is not possible for many of these women to change to western styles.

Mr. Landau should not generalize about the Indians. Some 600 odd Indian families settled in Dimona and played a big part in its progress. I cannot agree with his statement that Indians working in factories are subject to dismissals for absenteeism and ultimate reluctance on the part of the employers to take them on. On the contrary, the management prefers Indian employees because they are hard-working, regular and sincere.

Dimona, August 12.

•

Sir, — The excellent article on Dimona by David Landau (August 10) prompts us to write to commend you for the entire series on "Israel's cities and mayors." Such reporting furthers understanding of Israel's urban problems and should stimulate appropriate concern and action on the part of both citizens and officials.

'Save our singles'

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post

Sir, — Margarete Kohn's letter (July 29) about housing for the single sabra is 100 per cent correct. She may not be in the position to help her daughter although it is customary and even expected for parents to save money to provide for the housing of grown children; however, in our Western society this is not the case. We are not accustomed to ask our parents for help when we are grown up, independent and away from home. Many of our parents are also not in a financial position to help us now that we have settled in Israel.

However, if your daughter is 30 years old and finished her army service, why hasn't she organized other single Sabras to protest the housing discrimination? Among our homeless singles who are immigrants and who are asking for changes in policy, including more apartments and low rental housing, there are many singles who are here more than three years. They have no rights whatsoever and are exactly in the same position as Mrs. Kohn's daughter. They are in the same position except for one other thing: she is lucky enough to have a family living in Israel and a place to come home to if she needs it. Most of us have no families and no permanent home in Israel.

Cambodian denial

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post

Sir, — Your issue of August 13 carried Reuter and AP dispatches claiming that "for the first time in nearly a month they (guerrillas) made a concentrated effort to stop a convoy of ships" and that "according to the pro-Sihanouk Agence Khmer Presse, 1,800 Cambodian government troops surrendered to insurgent forces at Tang Kauk, 80 kms. from Phnom Penh.

This news report was utterly wrong as North Vietnamese and Vietcong forces continuously tried and are still trying, but in vain, to stop not only ships, but trucks from carrying supplies into Phnom Penh. Furthermore, the Agence Khmer Presse is not pro-Sihanouk, as it is the official organ of the government of the Khmer Republic. Lastly, there has never been any case of 1,800 Cambodian government troops surrendering to insurgent forces anywhere in Cambodia and Tang Kauk is not 80 kms. but 80 kms. from Phnom Penh.

With regard to the UPI dispatch in the same issue "Cambodia officials ask U.S. to oust Lon Nol," is tendentious, nonsensical, unfounded and made up.

Silent Cities Sacred Stones
Archaeological discovery in the Land of the Bible
by Jerry M. Landay
In the sand and soil of modern Israel the most exciting archaeological adventures of our time are taking place. The 'silent cities' have been given a voice, the 'sacred stones' are clear to see. In telling the story, Jerry Landay has produced a gripping narrative of a treasure hunt for knowledge of the buried world on whose foundations we live today.
